William Spencer Currell

Of the outside world one of the best known members of the Washington and Lee faculty is Professor William Spencer Currell. He has long been a favorite lecturer before various clubs and societies and Chatanquan Assemblies, and his services as a teacher are always in demand for summer schools, both in the South and North. This popularity is easily understood by those who have had the good fortune to be in his classes, or to listen to his lectures. His wide acquaintance with English literature, as well as that of other languages, his keen insight and sound criticism, combined with power of choice expression and with a kindly humor, invest with a deep interest to his hearers whatever subject he brings before them. That as a teacher he is inspiring is evident from the intense interest in literature awakened among his students.

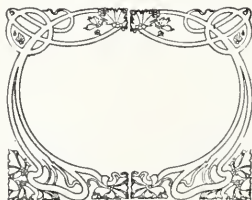

The work of Dr. Currell is by no means confined to the class-room or to literature, as he is interested in all that pertains to the uplift of his fellow men, especially along religious lines. He is often called on to fill the pulpit in various places throughout the South, and is a member of the Permanent Committee on Systematic Beneficence of the Southern Presbyterian Assembly, representing the Synod of Virginia on this committee. He is also frequently called on for Commencement addresses at colleges and academies.

Though born in Charleston, Dr. Currell can hardly lay claim to being a South Carolinian, since the major part of his life has been spent in Virginia. Whatever one might be inclined to judge from the unkindly way in which nature has bared the top of his head, it is true that he is not old enough to remember much about the Civil War. He took his degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Philosophy at Washington and Lee in 1878, and his Master of Arts the following year. In 1882 he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at this University, being one of a small but very select list who have attained that honor here. He was immediately appointed professor of English at Hampden-Sidney College, and four years later was called to the same chair at Davidson College. In 1895, on the removal of his old teacher, Professor Harri son, to the University of Virginia, Dr. Currell became professor of English and Modern Languages at his alma mater. Four years later, so much had the department developed, the chair was divided, and Dr. Currell was made Professor of English, which he has since remained.

In 1888 Dr. Currell married Miss Sarah Scott Carrington, and his charming home upon the University Campus, is blessed with seven daughters. We should not fail to add also that he is an indefatigable devotee of "ye ancient sport of golf."

Greetings?

This is the 1914 Calyx!

In it, we, the editors, have tried to depict the various phases of student life represented during the current scholastic year. Of this book's many shortcomings we are aware, but we hope you will take it for whatever worth it contains, and that it may be a great source of pleasure to you in after years, to peruse its pages and recall the happiest days of your life, those at Washington and Lee.

Gone Forward

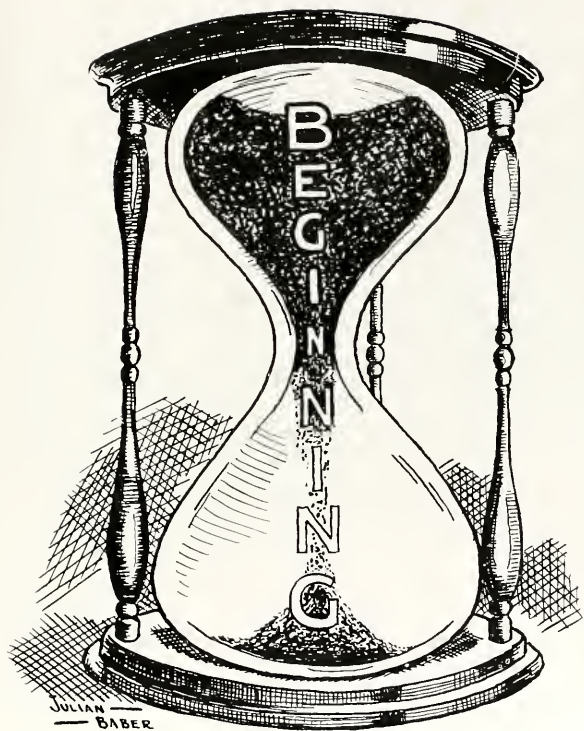

(ON THE DEATH OF ROBERT EDWARD LEE)

Yes, "Let the tent be struck!" Victorious morning
Through every crevice flashes in a day,
Magnificent beyond all earth's adorning.
The night is over; wherefore should he stay?
And wherefore should our voices choke to say,
"The General has gone forward"?

We will not weep—we dare not! Such a story
As his large life writes on the centuries' years,
Should crowd our bosom with a flush of glory.
That manhood's type supremest that appears
Today, he shows the ages. Nay, no tears
Because he has gone forward!

Gone forward? Whither? Where the marshall'd legions,
Christ's well-worn soldiers, from their conflicts cease;
Where Faith's true Red Cross Knights repose in regions
Thick studded with the calm, white tents of peace,
Thither, right joyful to accept release,
The General has gone forward!

—MARGARET JUNKIN PRESTON.

ROBERT LOCHRIDGE ANDERSON, JR.,
 Φ K Φ, Φ Δ Φ, W. F., Σ Ocala, Florida.

"Bob" says that the date of his birth is August 29th, 1888, and that Ocala is the place. His aim has always been to be a lawyer, but he has not omitted any of the intermediate steps, for he finished with the Ocala High School, and matriculated in the Academic department of this University in 1909. Being a bright boy, "Bob" did the required work for the Bachelor's degree in three years, and, accordingly, was decorated in June, 1912. No one doubts that he will receive a second "dip" in June, 1914. Member of Cotillion Club and "13" Club.

DAVID MEADE BARGER, Σ Φ Ε
 BUTTERWORTH, VIRGINIA.

"Dave" entered Washington and Lee sometime during the 1909-10 session, and feeling the need of some training preparatory to the study of law, he took up some Commerce and Economics, as well as Politics. Thus he early acquired a reputation for hard work. Since the fall of 1910, he has been a student in Tucker Hall, except during the 1912-13 session, when he was not in the University. "Dave" was born in Petersburg, Va., in April of 1893. He attended Dinwiddie High School before coming to Washington and Lee.

RAYMOND LEE BEUHRING, Π K Α, Δ Θ Φ, Π Α Σ
 HUNTINGTON, WEST VIRGINIA.

Here we have the only human "Cannon Ball," so called on account of his ability to rip through the line of all opponents when his signal is called. "B" has played at fullback for the White and Blue for three years, and his work has always been a feature. His early training in Academic work and football was received at Marshall College, where he was captain of the team for two years. Born at Decatur, Alabama, in 1891. Member of Band, Orchestra and Monogram Club.

WALLER STRALEY BROWN, $\Phi K \Sigma, \Delta \Theta \Phi$

STAFFORDSVILLE, VIRGINIA.

Brown is a first year senior lawyer, i. e., he is endeavoring to take a degree here, relying on some legal work he is reputed to have done at Richmond College. He has also attended Roanoke College, where an uncertain amount of Academic work was done. He has been known to confuse "quarts" and "quarters" when exposed to "Daddy's" rapid fire. He is a debater and orator of repute, the kind who bites nails, and causes his hearers to quake. Successful lawyer in Moot Court.

ARCHIBALD CHAPMAN BUCHANAN,

$\Pi K \Lambda, \Phi \Delta \Phi,$

TAZEVELL, VIRGINIA.

"Buck" came to us from Hampden-Sidney College, from which institution he had annexed an A. B. degree, all of which speaks well for Hampden-Sidney, for this man is recognized as one of the leaders in the class. He says that he was born on January 7th, 1890, at Tazewell, and we have no reason to doubt it. It might be added that we have no reason to doubt his success in his chosen profession, for it is rumored that his grasp of things legal is firm. Member of Cotillion Club.

ALBERT MOSES CARLTON

BROWNSVILLE, TENNESSEE.

The already great population of Brownsville, Tennessee, was materially increased on the third day of May, 1889, for that was the date on which the subject of this sketch was born. He intends to return to that same town and follow the practice of the law along with "Shorty" Gray and Herbert Sternberger, and these three Washington and Lee lawyers should be able to "corner" the market. Carlton's preliminary education was acquired at the Brownsville High School and the Ogilvie Training School.

STEPHEN FOWLER CHADWICK, K Σ , Φ Δ Φ , W. F.
OLYMPIA, WASHINGTON.

"Steve" was born in Colfax, Washington, in 1894. It is not known where he received his preparatory training, but it has been proven that he attended the University of Washington. After remaining there for a while, he obeyed that impulse, and started East in pursuit of the Law, and in 1912, it was discovered that he had matriculated at Washington and Lee. He is one of the few men who do not mind starting an argument with the "profs", and thus it would appear that his success in his chosen profession is already assured. "Chad" is president of the Harry Lee boat club and has coached the "Red" crews.

JAMES NIXON DANIEL, Σ X, Φ A Δ , Φ B K, W. F., Σ CHIPLEY, FLORIDA.

Maybe a close scrutiny of the map of Florida will not reveal the village of Chipley, but, strictly speaking, said place has been on the map since September 7, 1892, for then James Nixon Daniel was born. After a brief career of chasing alligators and attending Palmer College, he landed in Washington and Lee in 1909. He annexed an A. B. degree and a Phi Beta Kappa key, and then the law claimed him as its own. The Seniors made him historian, and he is the author of all these sketches—except this one of course. Assistant Editor Ring-tum Phi, 1912-13; Ring-tum Phi Staff, 1913-14; assistant Editor Calyx, 1912-13; University Press Club.

JAMES EASLEY EDMUNDS, JR., Δ T Δ , Φ Δ Φ
LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA.

Edmunds entered Washington and Lee in the fall of 1913, having completed one year's work in the study of law at the University of Virginia. Being very reserved by nature, besides the fact that he has been here for only a short while, has made it difficult for us to learn much about him. It is known that he attended Episcopal High School before entering the University of Virginia, and that he was born September 1, 1899. He is one of the best in the Senior Law Class.

ALFRED G. FOX, II K A

SALEM, VIRGINIA.

Alfred G. Fox appeared on the scene of this world's activity on January 7, 1891. Having been reared under the walls of Roanoke College he could not well escape taking an A. B. degree at that institution. A restless spirit having taken possession of him, he wandered to far-away Florida, to the city of Deland, where he completed the Junior Law course at Stetson University, and at the same time acquired a violent dislike for the University of Florida. Domestic Relations seems to have been his long suit in the Stetson Law School.

THOMAS HENLEY GEDDY, K Σ, Φ Δ Φ, W. F., Σ

WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA.

Tom has many claims to distinction, besides being the smallest man physically, in the class. He is a member of the Virginia Bar and Clerk of the Moot Court in spite of a delayed qualification. He is an A. B. from William and Mary College, and his loyalty to that institution is not questioned, because he is often heard to voice his sentiments when the collegiate championship of the State hangs in the balance. Tom is also some musician, being a prominent member of the Mandolin and Glee Clubs. Member Cotillion Club. We forgot to state that it was at Toano, Virginia, on January 30th, 1892, that he was born.

CHARLES SPEARS GLASGOW, Φ Γ Δ, Φ Δ Φ, Σ

LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA.

Charlie was born in Lexington, on February 12th, 1889, and of course he attended the Lexington High School, and matriculated in the University in 1905. An A. B. degree in 1909 was the natural result. He attained many honors during his stay in the Academic School, but he says that they have all been enumerated in a former Calyx, and being a modest young man, he has forbidden that they be again recorded. But we cannot refrain from mentioning the fact that he rowed on the Harry Lee Crew in 1908 and 1909. For his other accomplishments we refer you to the 1909 Annual.

LAFAYETTE RANDOLPH HANNA

Φ Κ Σ, Φ Δ Φ, W. F.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

Genius always has its reward, so we are told, and "Mark" has had his. His particular genius lies in the line of managing things, not to say anything of the law, and without fear of contradiction, it can be said that as manager of the "Ring-tum Phi" and the 1913 football team, he has had few equals. Here's his record. Captain Freshman Basketball team; Assistant Manager Calyx, 1912; Assistant Manager Football team, 1913; Business Manager Ring-tum Phi, 1912-13; Manager Football team 1913; Secretary and Treasurer Cotillion Club; Vice-president Final Ball, 1913-14; member '13' Club. Oh yes, "Mark" was born at Blountsville, Ala. in 1891. He has the business instinct and he should be a wonderful success in the business world.

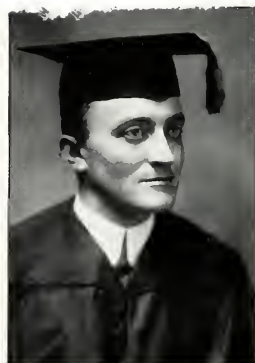

LEON W. HARRIS

WESTMINSTER, SOUTH CAROLINA.

When asked to write out his name in full he replied that the "W" had no significance whatever. As to where he will follow the practice of his chosen profession, he is in doubt, but has announced his intention to return to his native heath, notwithstanding the fact that the Governor of that State has said that football shall be abolished within the borders of the realm. It is to be remembered in this connection that Harris is an ardent admirer of the game as well as of Blackstone. Member Washington Literary Society; Y. M. C. A.; Member of football squads in 1912 and 1913; Baseball squad, 1913. Law Librarian, 1913-14.

WALTER LEE HOPKINS, Φ A Δ
RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

There is no doubt about "Hop" being the orator of the Senior Law Class, because it was some speech he made on February 22nd, 1912, at the Annual Celebration of the Washington Literary Society, and it was without any hesitancy that the judges awarded him the Orator's Medal. "Hop" is also an A. B. from Washington and Lee, entering the University in 1911, after having spent three years at William and Mary College. He was born at Rocky Mount, Virginia, in 1890. Manager Southern Collegian, 1912-13. Future vocation will be in the world of politics, where he is sure to succeed.

JOSEPH LLOYD HORTON, Α Χ Ρ
FARMVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA.

Just another example of the far-reaching fame of the Law School, because Joe spent two years in Academic work and other trivialities at the University of North Carolina, but when he began to view life seriously, he packed up and came to Lexington with his mind set on things legal. His sole idea is to have the Har Heel State changed from a "Code" to a "Common Law" commonwealth, when he returns home to guide the destinies of numerous clients. His address has been Farmville since February 3rd, 1894.

JOSHUA CARLTON HUDSON, $\Phi A \Delta$

NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

Carl was born on July 7th, 1892, in the Quaker City, but soon thereafter took up his abode in the Old Dominion, where it is his avowed purpose to remain. At Fishburne Military School he learned the Manual of Arms, and in 1911 we find him a student in our historic walls.

He feels certain that he will secure the coveted LL. B. in June, and he will surely do so. As Assistant Business Manager of this volume, he has done much to make it what it is, his particular job being to separate the advertisers from their cash, said cash being very essential to a book of this sort.

JOHN LOCKART HUGHES, $\Sigma \chi$

BENTON, ARKANSAS

This young lawyer has two Bachelor of Arts degrees, one from Henderson College, and one from the University of Arkansas. Feeling that he had enough of one kind, he decided to try a new variety, and that is why he is seeking to secure a LL. B. John was born at Benton, on May 10, 1892. He intends to return to his native State and follow in the foot steps of "Jeff" Davis, and no doubt he will some day astonish Congress with his eloquence.

ALBERT SIDNEY JOHNSON

RADFORD, VIRGINIA.

As his name would indicate Albert Sidney is a true fighter in the sense that he never surrenders, even if he does not, on the other hand, make any great inroads on the enemy. When called upon in class, he never answers "unprepared," but bravely rises and rushes into the fray. He was born on the 15th day of March, 1893, in Roanoke, Virginia, but he quickly realized that a city, however small, is no place for a young man, and he took up his abode in Radford, graduated from the Radford High School, and came to this University in 1911, and hopes to get away in 1914.

ERNEST KELLNER JR., Π Κ Α, Δ Θ Φ, Π Α Χ, Σ

GREENVILLE, MISSISSIPPI

The course of instruction offered by Burks, et als., has no terror for this man, for it has been established that he made over 95 per cent. on the Real Property examination. The question which has been agitating the class since that time is, When does Kellner study?

From 1905 through 1908 he was a student at Georgetown College in Kentucky, but, feeling the need of a broader education, he came to battle-scarred Lexington and levied on an A. B. in 1911. In 1912 he returned intent on securing a LL. B. and that is what he is going to do. Member Cotillion Club.

WALTER GUY LAUGHON, Σ Χ, Φ Α Δ, W. F.

PULASKI, VIRGINIA.

The pronunciation of this man's name has been the cause of much dissension in the law faculty. Some insist that it is "Law-Horn," while others are certain that it is "Long-Horn." To settle the dispute we will say that it is pronounced as if spelled "Lawn." Guy was born in Pulaski on March 2, 1892, and he graduated at the Pulaski High School and immediately entered Washington and Lee, that being in the fall of 1909. Spent three years in the Academic School. Assistant Manager Track Team, 1912-13; Manager Track Team, 1913-14.

BERLIN RICHARD LEMON, Δ Θ Φ

PAINT BANK, VIRGINIA

History has it that Paint Bank is in Craig County. That's where he lives. He was born at Oriskany, Virginia, on October 23, 1892. Berlin has looked over several colleges, but is convinced that his present choice is wisest. He has attended Daleville College and Virginia Christian College. The fall of 1909 found him enrolled at Washington and Lee, and the spring of 1912 found him with an A. B. Degree. Member Graham-Lee; class baseball team, 1910-11-12; Orator at Final Celebration of the two Literary Societies, 1912.

RICHARD BERNARD LOUGHIRAN, $\Sigma \Phi E, \Delta \Theta \Phi$

ASHEVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA.

Hickory, North Carolina, has two reasons for its fame, one being the fact that a certain wagon bears that name, and the other being the more important fact that "Rich" Loughran greeted the light there in the year 1892. He now resides in Asheville, because said city is a summer resort. (We know of no other reason, hence the one just mentioned.) The rudiments of learning were picked up at the Asheville High School and St. Mary's College, the latter school giving a course of instruction which has served to teach "Rich" how to keep an accurate account of his college finances. Member of T. N. E.

WILLIAM THOMAS LOVINS, $\Delta \Theta \Phi$

KENOVA, WEST VIRGINIA.

"Bill" came to us from the wilds of West Virginia, having been born in Wayne County, on August 27, 1887. He is really a good fellow, notwithstanding the fact that he is frequently heard to say that it is unjust that his native State should be called upon to pay that debt which it is alleged she owes the Old Dominion. Bill has had the interests of the class at heart ever since his arrival, as was evidenced when the Senior Class made him its president. Member Graham-Lee Literary Society and president of that society's annual celebration. Member of Sandal Club.

HORACE EDWARD MAYHEW, $\Lambda \chi \Psi$

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA.

After finishing three years of work at Roanoke College, this young man, like so many others whose names appear on these pages, decided that there were better things in store for him in and about Lexington, and that is why he matriculated here in September, 1912. Mayhew is not a native Virginian, his birth-place being Martinsburg, West Virginia. Besides being a good lawyer, he has tendencies in other directions, having been a member of the Glee Club in 1913 and 1914 and University Quartette in 1914. Secretary and Treasurer of South West Virginia Club.

ERNEST STRINGER MERRILL

GREENBACKVILLE, VIRGINIA.

All that we can say about Greenbackville, is that it is in Accomac County, but we can say more than that about this man who hails from that hamlet. He entered the University in September, 1911, and, on account of his training at the Norfolk Business College, it was found that he was needed in the administrative offices. His first year in College he was the Treasurer's stenographer, and during the last two years he has been President Smith's Secretary. He has found time to stroke the Albert Sidney second crew in 1912, and to row No. 1 on the first crew in 1913. President of Albert Sidney Boat Club, 1913-14; Ring-tum Phi staff, 1913-14; Chief Marshall Washington Literary Society annual celebration, 1914.

JAMES HENRY MILLER, K Σ, Δ Θ Φ, Π Α Χ, Σ

HINTON, WEST VIRGINIA.

"Fats" has many claims to distinction, among which might be mentioned All-South Atlantic guard in 1912 and 1913. Moreover, he is reported to have handed in one of the best papers on the subject of Torts that the Dean has ever received, not to say anything of the fact that he passed five tickets in one term. Genial and good natured, he is one of the most popular men in the University, and his avowed purpose is to separate West Virginia from graft.

Football Team 1910, 1911, 1912, 1913 and Captain 1912. Assistant Manager Baseball Team 1912.

HARRY LEWIS MILLER, Σ Χ, Φ Δ Φ

HINTON, WEST VIRGINIA.

Here is another of those who spent two years in the Academic School before he became convinced that the real University was in Tucker Hall. (See Burk's lectures on the relative merits of the departments of Washington and Lee.) Harry was born in Hinton on the 6th day of April, 1891. He has attended the Hinton High School and the Randolph Macon Academy at Front Royal, Va. Harry is said to be very dignified, but when interviewed on the subject, he refused to talk for publication.

HARRY EDWIN MORAN, Σ X, H A X, Σ

WYNDAL, WEST VIRGINIA.

Harry has refused to state when and where he was born, but he admits that his preparatory education was gained at Montgomery School and Fishburne Military School. He has the distinction of being one of the best pitchers who ever appeared on a College team, and many are his victories. That he has taken an active interest in all phases of college life is attested by the following.

Baseball team, 1910, 1911, 1912; Captain Baseball team, 1912; President Athletic Association; President Athletic Council '12; Vice-President Sophomore Class; President West Virginia Club; President "Sons of Ireland;" President Cofillion Club; Leader P. A. N. German; Leader Fancy Dress Ball, '14; Committee on Final Ball; Cheer Leader 1910-11, 1911-12, 1912-13, 1913-14; Monogram Club; President Junior Class 1911.

JACOB CHARLES MORRISON.

FAIRFIELD, VIRGINIA.

Charlie says that he "hopes to take a LL. B. in June." We say that we know he will do so, if a man's past record amounts to a "hill of beans." He graduated at Fairfield High School, and then came to Washington and Lee where he took two years in the Academic and Commerce Schools in preparation for his law course. He was born at Mellay, Virginia, but he refuses to divulge the date of that event, and you will have to judge for yourself. Charter Member of Forum; Vice President of Washington Literary Society, and was one of the debaters to represent that Society at its annual celebration in 1914.

CARLISLE HAVELOCK MORRISSETT.

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA.

Here we have him. "Judge" Morrissett is said to be an authority on every subject taught in and about Tucker Hall, as strong corroborative evidence of this statement, we point to his popularity when a pre-examination quiz is about to begin. His tory records that he was ushered into this world on January 29, 1892, at Richmond. Before entering Washington and Lee in the fall of 1912, this youthful lawyer was engaged in the wholesale shoe business in Lynchburg Va., and Charlotte, N. C. Secretary Treasurer Senior Law Class.

ROLLAND CLYDE MOSSMAN, $\Phi K \Sigma$

HUNTINGTON, WEST VIRGINIA.

He was born in Huntington, resides in Huntington, and informs us that he will return to that same city to take up the practice of the law. We understand that the opening for lawyers is exceedingly good in his State, due, no doubt, to the peculiar tendencies of many of the citizens. Mossman was born in 1892, but nothing was heard of him after that time until it became known that he was doing "prep" work at Kentucky Military Institute. He took first year law at the University of West Virginia, but rising higher, he will take his degree at Washington and Lee. He says that his future vocation will be the pursuit of the elusive dollar.

WILLIAM SAUNDERS PARKINS, $\Phi A \Delta$

MIDDLEBURG, VIRGINIA.

There is no doubt about the fact that this son of the Old Dominion will be numbered among the fortunate in June, when the sheepskins are distributed to the deserving. But there is some doubt as to where Middleburg is. William Saunders was born in Richmond, on the first day of June, in the year of 1894, and his ambition was realized when he entered Washington and Lee in the fall of 1911. He remained in the Academic School for one year, and then moved on to Tucker Hall in pursuit of better things. May his future legal efforts be as successful as those in Moot Court have been.

JUNIUS LEVERT POWELL, $\Phi \Gamma \Delta, \Phi \Delta \Phi$

WYTHEVILLE, VIRGINIA.

This young lawyer has had a checkered career since first matriculating in the University, i. e., his attendance score looks like a crazy quilt. He attended the Academic School during the sessions of 1908-09 and 1909-10, and then he was out of school for a year. 1911-12 found him enrolled in "Daddy's" school, but he played "hookey" the next year. Now he is with us again, and it is confidently believed that he will be here until June, and, moreover, secure a degree. It is interesting to note that "June" once attended Wytheville High School.

ROBERT DOUGLAS RAMSEY,
 Δ T Δ, Φ B K, Φ Δ Φ, H A N, Σ
 CAMDEN, ARKANSAS.

A mere enumeration of the honors which "Bob" has acquired since entering the University in September, 1910, is the best history that can be written of him. To begin at the beginning, he made Camden famous by being born there July 25, 1891. The pursuit of education carried him through Camden High, Clary Training School and Hendrix College. His A. B. degree was taken at Washington and Lee, in 1912, along with a Phi Beta Kappa key. Among his achievements might be mentioned "13" Club; Historian Freshman Class; Manager and Captain Freshman Baseball team; Varsity Football and Basketball squad, 1911-12; President Arkansas Club; Ring-tum Phi staff, 1912-13; CALYX staff; Secretary Student Body, 1912-13; Assistant Manager Track team, 1913; Press Club, 1912-13; Vice President Junior Law Class; President Combined Musical Clubs, 1913-14. Chairman Interfraternity Dance, 1913; President Cotillion Club, 1913-14; President of Final Ball, 1914.

HERBERT DAVID STERNBERGER
 BROWNSVILLE, TENNESSEE.

This is the man who made an absolute one hundred per cent. on the Carrier examination, but that is not surprising when one remembers that Herbert is one of the best bets in the Senior Law Class. After graduating from the Brownsville High School and the Ogilvie Training School, he set out to master the technicalities of the law. How well he has succeeded, is shown by the fact that, while representing the defendant in Smith vs. Cunningham, he threw his opponent out of court nineteen times. Assistant Manager Southern Collegian in 1913-14.

HOWELL MOFFETTE TANNER, Σ N, Δ Θ Φ
 BLUEFIELD, WEST VIRGINIA.

Tanner is one of the real hustlers of the Senior Law Class, which characteristic is not generally considered essential to the profession, but it is felt that he will surely succeed despite this handicap. Born April 25, 1890, at Ingleside, West Virginia. Attended Beaver High School and entered Washington and Lee University in 1912. Executive Co mittedman of Senior Law Class; member Harry Lee Boat Club.

JAMES THOMAS, JR., $\Phi \Gamma \Delta$

CHARLOTTE HALL, MARYLAND.

"Jimmie" was born in Baltimore several years ago, but no one has been found who knows just how long ago. Certainly not over thirty years. His preparatory education was gained at Portland High School, St. Paul, Minn., and at Charlotte Hall Military Academy in his home town. He entered Washington and Lee in 1911, sojourning for the space of one year in the Academic School, but in 1912, his pilgrimage in search of learning carried him to Tucker Hall, and it is a foregone conclusion that he will become a LL. B. in June, for he is one of the surest in the class.

MALCOLM FIROR TRIMBLE, $\Phi K \Psi$

WASHINGTON, D. C.

"Kelly" has been in the University since September, 1910, but the seriousness of the situation did not dawn upon him until exactly three years later, to wit, September, 1913, when, with a great vim, he seized upon the Law and passed off enough "tickets" to be before you as a candidate for a degree. Now he is headed for the supreme bench.

His natal place was Catlettsburg, Kentucky, but we do not know whether that village appears on the map since the 1913 floods.

The date of his birth seems to have been April 29, 1892, and before leaving the Blue Grass State he became a full-fledged "Colonel," Member "13" Club.

KENNON CATHINESS WHITTLE,

$\Pi K \Lambda, \Phi \Delta \Phi, W. F.$

MARTINSVILLE, VIRGINIA.

Kennon will be a lawyer "non obstante veredicto," in June, because he has already displayed his learning by passing the Virginia State Bar in 1914. But of course he will get the sheepskin. The date of his advent into this world was October 12, 1891. Exactly twenty years later, he had graduated from the high school in his home town and had matriculated in Washington and Lee. Now he is recognized as one of the most able advocates at the bar of the Moot Court. Member Graham-Lee Literary Society and was Vice-president of its centennial celebration in 1911. Rowed on Harry Lee second crew in 1913.

SAMUEL HAINES WILLIAMS, K Σ , Φ Δ Φ

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA.

Sam is one of the best-known men in the University, even to the freshmen, having operated the Co-operative Book Store for the last two years, where they sell everything from chocolate to dictionaries. The place and date of his birth are as follows; Lynchburg, December 27, 1890. Entered the Academic School in 1908. Out of college two years before he matriculated in the Law School in 1912, teaching during that time. Executive Committeeman of Junior Law Class; Culyx Staff, 1914; Ringtum Phi Staff, 1909-10. There is no doubt of his success at the bar.

ROBERT WARREN WINBORNE,

Δ T Δ , Φ Δ Φ , P Λ N, Σ

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA.

"Bob" points with pride to the fact that he was born in Buena Vista, in 1892. Randolph Macon Academy was the scene of his preparatory education. V. P. I. was the next stopping place of the pilgrim who was seeking the shrine of learning, and the goal will be attained in June when, with a sheepskin tucked away in his satchel, he will return to the Magic City to join that great throng of Washington and Lee lawyers who have gone on before him. Bob's principal claim to distinction is that he was one of the immortal "five" who made that "Special on Real Property." Member Cotillion Club. Member "13" Club.

"I CAN'T"

"I Can't" lacks in nerve; he's too faint of heart
To pitch in like a man and do his part;
He's none of the spirit that fight and wins;
He admits he's beaten before he begins.

"I Can't" sees as mountains what bolder eyes
Recognize as mole hills; ambition dies,
And leaves him complaining in helpless wrath,
When the first small obstacle blocks his path.

"I Can't" has a notion that, out of spite,
He's being cheated of what's his right.
The men who succeed by hard work and pluck,
He envies, and sneers at as "Fools for luck!"

"I Can't" is a loafer, who won't admit
That his life's the mess he has made of it;
The treasure that's sparkling beneath his eye,
He thinks he can't reach—and won't even try.

"I Can't" has a feeling the world's in debt
To him for a living he's failed to get;
But, given a chance to collect, he'll rant
About past failures, and whine, "I can't!"

—CHARLES R. BARRETT.

"I WILL"

"I Will" has a spirit that nothing daunts;
Once he gets his eye on the thing he wants
He rolls up his sleeves, and he pitches in
With a splendid zeal that is bound to win.

"I Will" never hesitates lest he fail—
In his heart he's sure that he will prevail.
No mountain can halt him, however high;
There's no task so hard but he'll have a try.

"I Will" sets his teeth when things start off wrong;
He just grins, and mutters; "This can't last long,
I'll take a fresh start; and Adversity
Will be going some if he catches me."

"I Will" has a punch hid in either hand;
He has training, strength, and a heap of sand;
He swings his hard fists in the world's grim face,
And he bangs away till the world gives place.

"I Will" understands in his own strength lies
The one chance he'll get at the things men prize.
Discouragement, failure—nothing can chill
The stout heart of him who declares, "I will!"

—CHARLES R. BARRETT.

JUNIOR LAW

CLASS

1915.

History of the Junior Law Class

WHILE a treatise setting forth the great tendencies of the century in growth of economic and sociological problems might prove interesting, yet we deem it important, that a meagre record of our early accomplishments should be here recorded on parchment. Mayhap it will prove to be of benefit for a "reasonable time" to many who may attempt the study of legal jurisprudence and perchance save many from "stoppage intransitu" when they are confronted by the seven iniquitous torments of Real Property.

On entering the portals of Tucker Hall we were directed to the Dean's office and there we received a hearty and cordial welcome from Dean Burks. We at once knew that we had found a person who was a profound scholar of the law, and one who would be a wise, kind, and sympathetic advisor. We well knew after our first acquaintance why he was called "Daddy"—the name speaks for itself.

There was a great disappointment and a loss inconceivable in its effects to occur to our class, and not only to our class, but to the whole University soon after we took up the study of law: While many of our number did not know

Professor Staples, yet we have felt his loss to the law school most keenly. Our predecessors had named him "Sunny"—this name likewise speaks for itself. He was kind, lovable, and painstaking in all dealings with students. As one has said of Professor Staples, he was—"a Virginia gentleman of the old school, considerate in every act, a self-sacrificing teacher of the law, magnanimous and sympathetic in all dealings with his fellow-man."

It was some little time before we settled down to work. "Zube", our first instructor in Contracts, took an over-dose of the "Statute of Frauds" one night, and soon developed appendicitis. Moomaw next took up the task of administering to us the essentials of a contract, and he exhibited the same ability as an instructor as he did on the football field, Washington and Lee, 1910-11 and 1911-12, which, by the way, is saying a great deal.

We shocked the whole community by the high-class ignorance we displayed at the fall examinations, and the law faculty has not yet quite regained its mental equilibrium. However, we have learned that "Joe" has an awful time with his Domestic Relations," and that it is well to have a few pointers on this subject when one ventures into the historic debutante society of Lexington. We have further been instructed, that in order to be saved from eternal destruction in Carriers, we should be thoroughly familiar with the case of N. and W. R. Co., v. Dixie Tobacco Co., 111 Va., 13. In this case "Bob" made himself famous. By a "Preponderance of the Evidence" it was demonstrated by the returns in December last, that the words of Senator Carmack are a prerequisite to those desiring to pass Carriers. The "Non-Assignable Duties of a Master" are as essential for obtaining a "G" in Torts as the Presbyterian catechism is for entrance into the University. A thorough knowledge of the "Canons of Descent" is a "Condition Precedent" to one's salvation in Real Property.

When the class first met for a discussion of the advisability of forming a political body, a scene was staged more dramatic than that which occurred at the defeat of "Compulsory Chapel" legislation last year. But after the smoke had cleared away, and the agonies of the disappointed had died out, Buford was allowed his seat as representative of the Junior Law Class on the Executive Committee. A hot bitter campaign preceded the election of the other class officers, but the forces of Haden carried the day, and he was placed in the presidential chair. Chambers emerged from the political conflict as the "Henry of the class.

We now struggle on, looking up to our senior friends with admiration, and wonder how they ever passed the torments of the Junior year.

JOHN WARD BAYLOR, II K A

INDIAN, VIRGINIA.

John is one of the few men of the old guard who has stuck by the class, and was one of about a dozen men to give the Junior Prom. in 1913. He passes his tickets as easily as Converse passed Commerce I, when it was a "Crip." Member of the Forum; Albert Sidney Boat Club; Southwest Virginia Club; Secretary of Junior Class, '13; and has received scholarships in German and History. He will study medicine.

HENRY NEVILS BARKER, $\Phi \Gamma \Delta$, Σ , II A X

BRISTOL, TENN.

"Hink" was born at Bristol, in the summer of 1892, and attended King College. Following the good example of an older brother, he entered Washington and Lee in the fall of 1910. The good esteem in which he is held by his fellow-students is evidenced by the fact that they made him President of this Class; he having been Vice-President last year. He is moreover, Vice-President of the Athletic Association; Manager of this year's Basket-Ball Team, and has played 'varsity end on the Football Team for the last three years. Member of Monogram Club, Thirteen Club, and Co-tillion Club. He intends to study law.

AMBROSE McCHESNEY BROWN

BUENA VISTA, VA.

There is probably no living man who knows as much of the innermost secrets of Southern Seminary as does Ambrose. He graduated from Buena Vista High School, and the authorities at Southern Seminary, considering him to be a menace to the welfare of the school, complained to his parents and had him sent to Washington and Lee. He has proved a hard worker at college, and will undoubtedly make a success as an M. D.

WARREN ORENSHAW BROWN, A T O
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

Warren is a capital fellow, having been born at Montgomery, Alabama, "sometime during the early nineties." He is Vice-President of this year's Senior Class; Assistant Manager of Track, '14; Assistant Manager of the Ring-tum Phi, '13; Glee Club, '13; President Alabama Club, '13; Final Ball Executive Committee, '13; Chairman of Finance Committee of Sophomore Class, etc. He is a member of the Thirteen Club and the Cotillion Club. He will be a "Capitalist."

EDWIN WHEELER BUCKINGHAM, JR.,
LYNCHBURG, VA.

This youthful, red-headed Esaye, has fiddled his way into the hearts of the faculty, and will receive a degree in three years, having dropped out in 1911-12. Attended the Lynchburg High School, and on coming to Washington and Lee, received two scholarships, was made Vice-President of the Lynchburg Club, and became Leader of the University Orchestra. He will study medicine, become a specialist, and will finish his career as a medical missionary.

WILLIAM MOSELEY BROWN
DANVILLE, VIRGINIA

Knows more German than the Kaiser. Graduated from Danville High School in 1911, and was valedictorian of his class there. His accomplishments since entering college are the Latin Scholarship, '12; Vincent L. Bradford Scholarship, '13; Assistant in German, '13; Instructor in German, '14; Winner of Debater's Medal in Graham-Lee Celebration, '14; Alternate, Intercollegiate Debates, '14; Member of Ring-tum Phi Staff, '14; Harry Lee Boat Club; Secretary of Y. M. C. A.; Member of Y. M. C. A. Cabinet. He will be engaged in Christian work.

JERRY ALLEN BURKE, $\Sigma \Phi E$

Jerry is a product of historic Appomattox, and, as a sacred memento of that bloody battle-field, wears his hair red. Inspired by General Robert E. Lee's Farewell Address to his Army, he came to Washington and Lee in the fall of 1911, and joined the Graham-Lee Literary Society and the Oral Debates Class. He has been the recipient of vociferous applause on the forensic platform, and with this encouragement will go out into the wide world to win battles on the intellectual grid-iron.

FRANK DEAN COE, JR., $\Phi K \Psi$

LEXINGTON, VA.

Frank is one of the natives of Lexington, and gives evidence of this fact on all occasions, by his indolent and nonchalant attitude toward life in general. He was born on March 20th, 1892, and entered school here in "the good old days." Law is his preferred vocation, and we may expect to have him with us for several years longer.

EDWARD MARSHALL CRAIG, JR., H K A PRATTVILLE, ALA.

Having broken up the colored band and paid his fine like a little man, he settled down once more to a commonplace existence. Born at Cuthbert, Ga., on July 23d, 1895. Graduated at Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville, Ga. Has served valiantly on the scrub football team, and has been the star of more than one class game. His future vocation is undecided, but we have no fear for his success in whatever he may undertake.

LEWIS BERKELEY COX, Φ Ψ Δ
BALTIMORE, MD.

Born in Portland, Ore., in June, 1894, he moved to Lexington, and attended the Lexington High School. Entered Washington and Lee in 1910, but dropped out the next year and returned last year to complete his degree. He filled the centre position on his class Football Team; member of King-tum Phi staff, '14; Editor of Freshman Handbook, '13. He will teach for two years and then return to take up the study of law. If association counts for anything, he should be an authority on International Law.

FREDERICK MICAJAH DAVIS, Φ Δ Θ

LYNCHBURG, VA.

From the list of honors below, it may be seen that Fred is the "nips" when it comes to oratory. In plain words, "whatever it takes to do it, he's got it." He was born at Lynchburg, Virginia, on February the 28th, 1893, and entered Washington and Lee with the class of '15. He soon perceived that he was a year behind the times, and decided to end his academic career with the illustrious class of '14. He is Secretary of the Senior Class; News Editor of the Ring-tum Phi; Southern Collegian Staff; Secretary of Lynchburg Club, '13; Secretary of Intercollegiate Debating Council; Secretary of Graham-Lee Society, '13; Chief Marshal Graham-Lee Celebration, '13; Debator in Annual Celebration '14; Fancy Dress Ball Committee, '13; and has been a member of Band, of the Orchestra, and took part in the Gym. Exhibition '12. He will return to study law.

ALBERT SIDNEY CUMMINS

NATURAL BRIDGE, VA.

This youth, named in honor of one of the patron saints of aquatic sports, was born near the famous Natural Bridge, in Rockbridge County, Va. He spent his boyhood days in a vain endeavor to find the dollar that George Washington threw over the bridge. Finding this to be a fruitless task, he decided that education was the best way after all, and having absorbed all the knowledge in Buena Vista High School, Daleville College, not to mention Washington and Lee, he is fitted for whatever life may throw in his way.

LEWIS TALMAGE DAVIS

PANPLIN, VA.

Made his debut in Appomattox County, in 1886, and attended Marshall College and the University of Virginia before coming to Washington and Lee. He is a shark, and doesn't seem to have to work very hard for it. He has taught school for several years and will teach for several more, if he lives and nothing happens.

JAMES DRURY FLOWERS, A T O, Σ, W. F.
MONTGOMERY, ALA.

"Snookums" arrived in 1910, with a diploma from Barnes Prep. School, which he believed would overcome all obstacles, so he worried not at all about his collegiate duties—simply ran around, having a good time and making friends with everybody. At last, he has settled down to work and the pool room and McCrum's know him no more. Historian of Junior Class; Secretary of Student Body; Class Football; Thirteen Club and Cotillion Club. Expects to go into the lumber business.

JOHN ALEXANDER GRAHAM, K A
LEXINGTON, VA.

A native product and a youthful prodigy. Has done everything from teaching French to writing an opera and producing a suffragette show. He has carried off several scholarships since the fall of 1910, and there is no telling what he would do if he would turn himself loose. Attended the Lexington Grammar School and St. James School in Maryland. Will probably spend the next few years teaching French and the Tango. Member of Cotillion Club.

FAUSTO GUTIERREZ, Φ K Σ, W. F.
SAGUA LA GRANDE, CUBA.

Fausto entered this country eight years ago, immediately after one of Cuba's bi-monthly revolutions; a mere lad with a winning smile and a peculiar accent, both of which he retains to this day. Attended Bloomsburg (Penna.) State Normal School, Maryland Agricultural College, Randolph-Macon Academy at Front Royal, Va., Washington Collegiate School, and Siwash College. His specialty is wild stories of the life in Cuba, and he has an inexhaustible store of these on hand. He will study law, and some day will reflect credit on his last Alma Mater, by getting himself elected president of Cuba.

LEO JACOB HART, Σ Φ Ε
KERENS, W. VA.

Leo was born in a foreign country, West Virginia, on September 8th, 1893, and, after attending the Greenbriar Presbyterial Military School, immigrated to Lexington, where he has rapidly acquired the earmarks of civilization. He has also monopolized all the offices in the Greenbriar Club, being President, Secretary, and Treasurer of that organization. On account of this monopolistic success he has decided to follow a business career.

WILLIAM LEE HARRELL
FREDERICKSBURG, VA.

Harrell comes to us from Fredericksburg College. He is a native of Georgia, having been born in that State on May 3d, 1894. Although entering the class for the first time, this year, he will receive his degree in June, and after that will teach school for a few years. He will eventually enter the ministry.

ROBERT PUSEY HOBSON, Η Κ Α FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY.

Bob has led a strenuous life here, because he has the example of two older brothers to follow. Before coming to school here, he graduated from Frankfort High School. The sophomores made him President of their class in 1912-13, and the student body made him their Vice-President this year, so his older brothers can find no fault with his college career. Next year he will enter John-Hopkins University to take up the study of medicine.

SAMUEL OTT LAUGHLIN, JR., H K A, H A X
WHEELING, W. VA.

Sam, chiefly known as the brother of Phil, was born at Cleveland, Ohio, on October the 11th, 1891. He attended Linsly Institute and then accompanied Phil to Lexington, where he has since become treasurer of the family. He is Executive Committeeman for his class this year, and was Assistant Manager of the Football Team. He has been elected manager of next year's team and will return to take up his duties as such. His future business is manufacturing.

GEORGE KERNS
CHARLESTON, W. VA.

Charleston first saw Kerns on December 16, 1891. They considered him almost as a Christmas present. Attended Charleston High School, and spent two years in West Virginia University. Realizing the error of this, he came to Lexington, and has bent his energies toward getting an A. B. degree. Is a member of the Harry Lee Crew Squad, and of the Graham-Lee Literary Society.

JONAH LUPTON LARRICK,
CHAMBERSVILLE, VA.

Jonah was cast up by the whale, sometime during the eighties, at Hayfield, Va. He was not content with the brand of education handed out to him at the Chambersville High School, so he attended Fairfax Seminary, Shenandoah Valley Academy, and Cluster Springs Academy. By the time he had loafed through these he had become a very versatile young man, and so was shipped off to Washington and Lee, where he has displayed this same versatility along every line of college life, as witness: Member of Class Athletic Committee for three years; Treasurer of Class for two years; Class Football three years, and Class Baseball and Basket-Ball four years; also being captain of each one year; Varsity Track Team three years; Gyn. Team four years, Manager of same two years, and Captain one year; Winner of Horizontal Bar and Parallel Bars Medals; V. M. C. A. Cabinet five years, General Secretary of Y. M. C. A., '14; Executive Committee, '13; Assistant Gymnasium Instructor four years; Gen. Athletic Council three years; Secretary of Washington Literary Society; President of Student Body, '14; Pitcher on Varsity Baseball Team. Isn't this enough?

VANN MARSHALL MATTHEWS

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Born at son e little place in North Carolina, on March 18th, 1890, and the name of the place of his birth was immediately changed to Matthews. Having outgrown his native village, he moved to Charlotte, where he attended the Charlotte University School. Entered this school in 1910, and became a bulwark on his Class Football Team. He will study medicine and spend his life administering bread-pills and colored water to the inhabitants of his native country.

MORRIS LOUIS MASINTER, Δ Σ P

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA.

"Then comes the Justice, with fair, round belly and good capon lined."

Born at Pocahontas, Va., he moved to Roanoke, and from thence has come to Washington and Lee, capturing the following honors; Intercollegiate Debating Team; Winner of Debater's Medal at Wash. Celebration; Business Manager of Southern Collegian; Exchange Editor of Southern Collegian; Vice-President Joint Debate, '13; Vice-President Washington Literary Society; and member of Harry Lee Boat Club. He takes his athletics in the form of class football, and will become a lawyer.

FRANCIS PICKENS MILLER, Φ Γ Δ.

LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA.

Born at Middlesboro, Kentucky, on June 5th, 1895. Specialties are scholarships, Y. M. C. A. work and Boat Crews, as witness below: Latin Scholarship, Franklin Scholarship, James J. White Scholarship; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '13; Vice-President of Y. M. C. A., '14; stroke on Harry Lee Fall Crew, and on Harry Lee Second Crew; Vice-President of Harry Lee Boat Club, '13, and Secretary-Treasurer of same, '14; Secretary and Treasurer Graham-Lee Literary Society, '12; Class Football Team.

ARTHUR WILLIAMSON McCAIN, $\Phi K \Psi$, H A N
JONESBORO, ARK.

"Mac" came into the world at Little Rock, Ark., on April 26th, 1894, and received his preparatory schooling at Jonesboro' High School, Executive Committeeman for Sophomore Class, '13; leader of Soph. Push-Ball Team; Basket-Ball Squad, '12; Basket-Ball Team, '13, '14; Member of Debating Team against Tulane University, '13; Valedictorian of Senior Class, '14. Banking is his chosen vocation.

THOMAS ALEXANDER McCORKLE
LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA.

Three months after he was born, he had mastered the fourth dimension, and when he came to Washington and Lee in 1910, there was no more math. for him to learn. However, he went through all the math. courses for the sake of the points, and will spend the rest of his life teaching his pet subject. After attending Lexington High School and graduating with honors, he came to the University, where he won the Franklin Society Scholarship. He won't talk very much about himself, but any one who knows him will tell that when it comes to brains, he is there!

FRANK LEE MCCOY, $\Phi \Delta \Theta$
GAINESVILLE, GA.

Having attended the University of Georgia, and used up the entire curriculum there, "Mac" heard of the peculiar advantages and three-fold reasons why he should come to Washington and Lee, and joined us this year. He is an example of our new type of student body, and therefore will acquire his degree with no difficulty. As it has become quite the thing for every A. B. of Washington and Lee to return and take law, this young man will follow suit and do likewise.

JAMES HARPER ROWAN

GREENVILLE, VA.

Was born in Arkansas, so this accounts for everything. Attended the High Schools at Russellville, Ark., and Greenville, Va. President of Graham-Lee Literary Society for winter term, '14; Executive Committeeman of Graham-Lee Society; played on Senior Class Football Team. His future is as yet undecided, he hasn't given it a thought.

CHARLES PRICE REYNOLDS

CHASE CITY, VA.

Reynolds was initiated into the mysteries of life at Newport News, Virginia, the date being February the 17th, 1894. He early became imbued with the desire to run away and become a sailor, so his parents to thwart these reckless impulses on the part of their son, moved him to Chase City. He received his early education at Appomattox Agricultural High School, and after the surrender, followed General Lee to Lexington. He intends to practice law.

CLARENCE LANE SAGER, A X P

FUNKSTOWN, MD.

Clarence is a product of the year 1891, and also of the Hagerstown High School. Among the scholarships he has won at this University, are the History scholarship, '13, and the Luther Seever-Birely scholarship, '14. He has been honored with the presidency of the Washington Literary Society; Debater in the Washington Celebration; Chief Marshal of Final Exercises, '13; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet; member of the Debating Council, and of the Ring-tum Phi Staff, and is also Assistant Editor-in-Chief of the Southern Collegian. He will practice law.

WALTER HAMPTON SHIREY

BUENA VISTA, VA.

Spent the first sixteen or seventeen years of his life in Buena Vista, the place of his birth, but has spent the last four in the Engineering drawing room of Reid Hall. Is working for a B. A. degree, but will be a Civil Engineer. Is a member of the Harry Lee Boat Club, and has played football with the scrubs and with his class team.

RAY SAMMONS SMITH, K A

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

With a complexion beautified by the baths at Hot Springs and a diploma from Hot Springs High School, he made his entrance into college life in the fall of 1910. He may be found at any hour of the day or night, along the trail from the Kappa Alpha House to Coleman's Drug Store, and it is whispered that he is being used as an advertisement for this last named firm. He intends to study law.

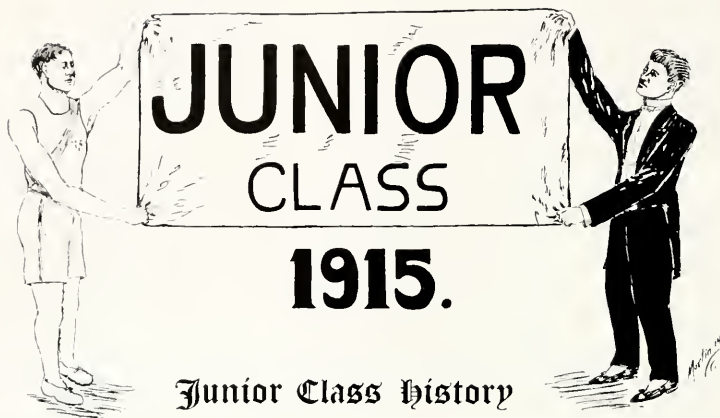

JOHN EDWIN WAYLAND

WAYNESBORO, VA.

Reared under the shadow of Fishburne Military Academy, he bears himself with a military air, and his impressive appearance delights the eyes of the fair sex, of whom he is a devoted admirer. He went out for baseball in 1912 and was, with difficulty, persuaded that he had not made the team. He is a hard worker, and deserves everything that comes his way.

RECUMBENT STATUE OF ROBERT E. LEE

HAVING heard, in our far-away homes, of the "Athens of the South," and the grand old Washington and Lee University, we took the train for the far-famed historic old city of Lexington. Never before had such a class enrolled in the institution.

We began our career by holding the terrible Sophmores to a scoreless tie in the annual Push-ball contest. Our famous celebration on Hallowe'en night was so thoroughly successful that the classes who followed have long since abolished the barbaric custom. By contributing a large number of men to the 'varsity, and sacrificing a successful class team, Washington and Lee again came to her own in athletics. As to honors in athletics, our class has won them by the score. They have been awarded monograms in every branch of college activities: football, baseball, basket-ball and track.

None of us being affected by the famous "Automatic Rule," we assembled again in the fall of 1912, to instruct the Freshmen in the affairs of college life. Again we participated in the Pushball fight, in which we won a decisive victory. In class football we made a decided improvement over the preceding year, continuing to furnish a number of valuable men for the 'varsity. The Sophomore Cotillion was our first attempt in the collegiate social affairs. Here we proved ourselves able leaders, for the dance was the most successful of its kind in the history of the institution.

The present Junior Class has continued to do itself credit, although many of them have become Seniors, and a large number have entered the Law School. The Junior Prom. was undoubtedly the most enjoyable event of the year.

The Class of 1915 leaves a record behind it, of which each member is proud, for we have done credit both to the University and to ourselves.

Depleted in ranks, but ennobled in manner, the lustrous galaxy of luminaries of the class of 1916, returned during the roseate days of September, to add prestige to Washington and Lee. The populous number of Freshmen that had enlivened the University the year before, had dwindled down through inexorable laws, including the awful automatic rule.

Hardly had we arrived before an added responsibility was thrust upon our seeming dignity. With maternal care, we assumed the guidance of the Freshmen. Soon, under our lovable protection, their vocal talents were beralded throughout the nocturnal zephyrs, while they were soon instructed in the delicate art of receiving.

The verdant newcomers exhibited their prowess and stamina, when, after a fierce draw of three vigorous quarters, they overwhelmed the valiant Sophomores, 56 to 0, and achieved their initial triumph in the gruelling pushball fight.

Debutting in the social world, the class of 1916 contributed a crowning event to the University, when the new gymnasium was christened with the Sophomore Cotillion. The inaugural event of the Thanksgiving festivities was a distinct success and was conceded to have been a most gladsome frolic.

In the realm of sport, the Sophomores were well represented. To the varsity team, a coterie of athletes from the class of 1916 starred. Shultz and Lile played on the gridiron; Colville, Lile, and Harrison on the baseball team; while the versatile Lile also starred in basketball. A vast array of our noble number offered their talent to the various teams, many doing service on the scrubs.

In class athletics, the Sophomores achieved second position in both football and basketball. The Juniors succumbed before the Sophomores in the opening gridiron game, but, on account of injuries and lack of practice, the winners were forced to relinquish the championship to the Freshmen. In basketball, the Seniors were bested in a gruelling clash, but again the Freshmen, having defeated the Juniors, won the gonfalon in the final game.

Among our ranks fell an additional honor, for Johnson won the cross-country race in fine fashion, and established a new university record. Oh, great have been our achievements, and, but for the limited space, would embellish the pages of this illustrious record.

BEFORE

FRESHMAN CLASS 1917.

AFTER

Freshman History

The Book of Freshmen

Being a chronicle of the delivery of the class of '17 out of bondage into the Sophs.

(With apologies to a Princeton "Grad.")

And it came to pass that when it was the fall of '13, that the host of the Freshmanites came into the land of Lexington.

2. And they looked upon the land and saw it was good, being full of Sophs and divers other people; and forthwith their hearts were filled with a great desire.

3. Now as the Chief of the Sophs looked out over the land and beheld the hosts of Freshmanites, his heart rejoiced and was glad.

4. Forthwith he called unto him the chief men of the tribe and made known unto them his desires; and forthwith he sent messengers into all parts of the land, proclaiming a great feast and rejoicing for the regalement of the strangers.

5. And when the children of the Fresh saw the great feast of honor and the exceeding gladness, they rejoiced and waxed warm in their praise, saying, "Truly this is a land filled with the fruits of men, it is good, and we will remain."

CHAPTER II

Now the Chief of the Sophs was a covetous Chief, and knew well the wants of the Athletic Association.

2. And as he looked upon the shekels of the Freshmanites, forthwith there came unto him a great light.

3. So straightway he hid himself unto the king of the land and informed him concerning what he had found.

4. And the king spake and said unto him. It is well that you have come unto me, for my coffers are indeed in sore need, and your advice heartens me greatly; straightway will I go forth and solicit for my various activities according to their worth, for some, five shekels, some one shekel and the half part of a shekel, and others even to the smallest part of a shekel; do thou harry the strangers by night and I will visit them by day.

5. Assenting thus, the Chief of the Sophs hastened away and forthwith came unto him several of his followers and spake unto them saying, Go thou forth straightway and look into the Freshmanites, observe closely any untoward act, and by night render unto thyself a goodly account with a paddle.

6. And straightway did these men depart into the night, carrying misery and paddles into the utmost parts of the land.

CHAPTER III

And it came to pass that when the children of the Fresh were delivered unto the Sophs in bondage, that the king of the land decreed a decree, proclaiming in all the towns that the Fresh should do battle with the Sophs on the Plains of Wilson.

2. But when it came to the ears of the Freshmanites, they were sore afraid, for they were without a leader and a commander, who should guide them.

3. But the King proclaimed unto them, Choose ye forthwith a leader that ye may not be as sheep when ye fall into the hands of the Sophs.

4. And straightway the children of the Fresh did as they were commanded, and entered onto the field with light hearts, for might was with them.

5. And a great multitude had repaired unto the Plains of Wilson to witness what they might see.

6. And the length of the field was three hundred cubits, and one hundred and sixty cubits was the breadth thereof.

7. And on the west and on the east were erected great stands to accommodate the people.

8. And in the center of the field stood a great ball and six cubits was the diameter thereof.

9. And the Freshmanites rose up in their might to strive to possess the ball.

10. And the two peoples rose up to smite each other, and they strove long and hard, and neither was the victor.

11. Thrice did they cease, and thrice did they begin again.

12. Whereupon the king rose up and declared an end to the battle.

13. And when it came to a reckoning, Freshmanites were the victors.

14. And the number of the slain of the Sophs was fifty-six, while not a Freshmanite was hurt, not even to the hairs of his head.

15. Nevertheless the king gave back unto the Sophs the supremacy which was theirs, although great had been their fall.

CHAPTER IV

And it came to pass that the children of the Fresh again rose in their might and went out over the land to conquer the tribes thereof.

2. At length they came unto the country of the Seniors.

3 And they did give battle unto each other, and they fought a great fight, and great was the bloodshed.

4. But might was on the side of the Freshmanites, and they were again victorions.

5. And again they came unto the land of the Sophs, who were now become victors over the army of the Juniors.

6. The Captain of the Freshmanties issued unto the Sophs challenge, saying: Be it known unto ye, O Sophs, that I, the Captain of all the Freshmanites, do issue unto you a challenge for the football supremacy of this land.

7. But the Captain of the Sophs did yield the supremacy without say, for his army was sorely crippled and in dire distress.

8. But the king again hardened his heart and yielded not the champion out of slavery.

CHAPTER V

And it came to pass that after the feast Christmas, that the king, according to custom, released the children of the Fresh from out of their bondage; and repealed divers statutes concerning their conduct.

2. When the children of the Fresh heard this they greatly rejoiced and made glad.

3. And they went into all the parts of the land with light hearts and laughter.

4. And they looked back unto their past and were well pleased, for they said, It is good; we have fought a good fight, and rejoice in the fruits thereof.

5. And peace reigned throughout the land, and in all its parts was there no more strife or bloodshed.

M-i-l-e-s-t-o-n-e-s

E. V. C.

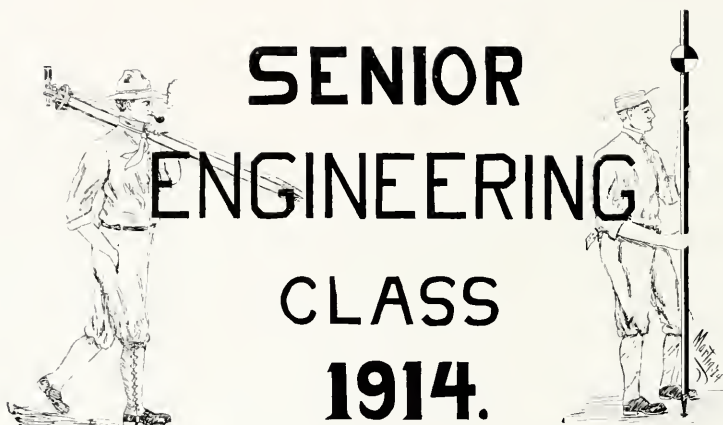

When your golf is getting stronger and your tennis getting tare,
When you'd rather guy the umpire than get out and play the game,
When you're feeling over-friendly to your rival in the race,
When you'd rather rest in comfort than be practising the pace,
When your inner impulse whispers "Halt," where once it shouted "Go!"
When you'd rather read beside the grate than revel in the snow,
These are m-i-l-e-s-t-o-n-e-s toward the ending of the row.

When your barber's conversation is of eau-de-hair-restorer,
When you're less inclined to Bergson than you are to Mrs. Rorer,
When your life insurance broker finds you dumb as he discloses—
Your many bills for funeral wreaths, your few for bridal roses,
When you'd rather see the sun rise a la lantern at the show
Than to climb a morning mountain for the early eastern glow;
These are m-i-l-e-s-t-o-n-e-s toward the ending of the row.

When the man you met but yesterday, is he you do not know,
But you instantly recall the face of forty years ago;
When you'd rather take a taxi than to take a half-mile breather—
And you'd just a little rather take a pousse cafe than either,
When the ever-lasting struggle for the never-lasting dough
Makes you wish to buy a fruit farm just to watch the apples grow,
These are m-i-l-e-s-t-o-n-e-s toward the ending of the row.

SENIOR ENGINEERING CLASS 1914.

Officers

J. D. THORNTON.....	PRESIDENT
C. C. RITICOR.....	VICE-PRESIDENT
C. B. WHETZLE.....	SECRETARY-TREASURER
E. B. DOGGETT.....	HISTORIAN

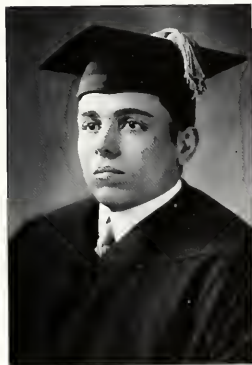

WILLIAM HOUSTON BARCLAY, K A
LEXINGTON, VA.

"Houston," like some others of his class, is, and always has been, an inhabitant of the "historic and battle-scarred" town of Lexington. He was born here in 1890, and, after attending the Lexington High School, came to Washington and Lee in 1908. He has spent most of his time while here either in the Chemistry laboratory, or on the second floor of Reid Hall. He is applying for a B. S. degree in Chemistry, and expects to be a Chemist after leaving here.

EGBERT BOGUE DOGGETT
DANVILLE, VA.

This young gentleman honored Danville by being born there on October 12th, 1892. He graduated from the High School in that place, and matriculated with the rest of us in '10. Since then Egbert has spent his time mastering Liv's math., absorbing the theories of Civil Engineering, and working general courses in Chemistry. Nevertheless, he has always found time to loaf a great deal. He is Secretary-Treasurer of the Chemical Society and, in the line of athletics, made good on the Senior Football Team. Doggett is Historian of the Senior Engineers, but is too modest to write his own biography. Hydraulic Engineering will probably damn him in the future.

CLAUDE BAXTER BUSH
CLARKSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA

Bush was born in 1890, in Denver, Colorado, but soon left the "Wild and Woolly West," and after spending his preparatory years at Clarksburg High School, became in 1910, a Washington and Lee man with the rest of us. It was while here that his gymnastic ability was demonstrated, in that he won the medal in tumbling, 1910-11; all around gymnast cup, 1911-12; Monogram Club; Captain Gym Team and Assistant in Gym for two years. This young gymnast took a course in Harvard Summer School of Physical Education in order to be of greater benefit to his understudies. He will probably follow architecture in the future, in which we are sure he will be able to introduce many new "stunts."

LEE R. GRABILL, K A

WASHINGTON, D. C.

"Gabby" loves next to a good time, the novelty of a short visit in various educational institutions in the country. In order to get a good start, he was born in Fredericksburg, Va., in 1890, attended the High School in Washington, and later Drury College, Springfield, Mo., until in 1912, we find him at Washington and Lee. Here he identified himself with the Washington Club, and the Glee Club, for "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," as we can all testify. If to him a "Bonnie Lassie," and a brilliant future is allowed, the world may roll merrily on. "Gabby" does not hazard a guess as to what the coming years hold for him; in the meantime may we advise that he travel for his health.

JOEL JOSHUA HALBERT, A T O

JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

"Josh" was born at Grenada, Miss., in 1893, and later attended the Jackson High School in the same State, from which he was fortunate enough to graduate. Then the signs of the zodiac, at which "Josh" is now a master, sent their message, and, in the fall of 1911, he left the balmy air of the Southland for the Mountain breeze at Washington and Lee. Here he was rewarded by being made Vice-President of the Mississippi Club, 1914, and became a foundation member of the Canadian Club, '13-'14. By assiduous application at the gentle art, he prides himself at having had three very successful years under "Sissy," and finally attained the assistantship, '13-'14. "Josh's" ambition is insatiable, so, when he gets his B. S., he intends to attend school elsewhere for the study of architecture and the pursuit of happiness.

HONORE MORANCY HAYNE, A T O

JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

"Monty" certainly has a musical name, but this does not seem to worry him much. He is convinced that "Optimism is the spice of Life," and upholds his conviction by always having a good time. Born in Jackson, Mississippi, he first tried Dixon Academy, Louisiana, and then Jackson High School, from which he graduated. Later he heard the call of Washington and Lee, and during his sojourn here achieved and had thrust upon him, the following: Track Team, 1910-'11; '12-'13; Relay Team, 1911-'12-'13; Class Football, 1912; White Friars; Cotillion Club; '13-'14 Club; Captain Track Team, 1913-'14; Executive Committee, 1913-'14; Canadian Club, 1913-'14. Although there is some speed to this young athlete, he hopes to get his B. S. in a walk. It is a pity he was not born a millennium ago in ancient Egypt, for "Monty's" highest ambition is to be a civil engineer, which he interprets to mean "bossing niggers in a railroad camp." His future is a bright one.

JOHN SCOTT MOORE

LEXINGTON, VA.

Scott is exceedingly dogmatic in his statements, but nevertheless is a good-natured fellow, not at all egotistical; knows what he wants and usually gets it. He was born May 9th, 1891, under a lucky star; he "deemed himself peculiarly fortunate" so, as a natural sequence, after spending three years at the Lexington High School, he had a hunch that he wished to become an engineer, and in 1910, entered Washington and Lee. In June, Scott expects to get his B. S. in Civil Engineering, and will afterwards devote his talent to what he considers his calling, in which his civility will surely help him. We wish him all success.

CHARLES CARTER RITHOR

OATLANDS, VA.

"Charley" was born at Oatlands, wherever that is, in 1892. He started his career at Mountain Gap Prep, after he made a pilgrimage to Washington and Lee, in 1910. Here this young fellow plunged into the mazes of Engineering and Chemistry, but it is the latter which he holds supreme, although he defines his future vocation as a Chemical Engineer. When "Charley" is "stumped" in threading the devious paths of the occult sciences, he takes refuge in a smile, and this never fails to throw some light on the subject. Recognizing the gift, he was made Vice President of the Senior Engineering Class, '13-'14, and also of the Chemical Society the same year, and played class football, 1912. "Charley" is now a member of the American Chemical Society, but his future is a Gordian Knot, which, be assured, he will be able to cut.

JAMES DAY THORNTON, ΣΧ

Jimmy backed into Lexington four years ago with a smile that has never worn off. Has worked on a lot of things harder than books, but has always murdered Sissy's Physics; is also a Chemistry shark, analyzing anything from hobbleskirts to pretzels. Makes frequent raids into society, with a sad fatality among the fair ones, who rave about those curly locks. A popular and busy student, for besides being right hand man to Miss Annie and Ike, he has done the following stunts: Executive Committee-man Junior Class; President Senior Engineers; Assistant Manager Football, 1912; Captain Scrub Baseball, 1912; Executive Committee-man, Final Ball, 1913; Student Manager Lyric, 1913-14; Junior Football Team; Cotillion Club; H. A. N.; Σ.

JOSHUA CLYDE WHETZEL

MARTINSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA

This scholastic prodigy, in the language of biographies, was born in Martinsburg, May 11th, 1893. When he was younger, he attained honors in the High School of that "Burg" and, after graduation in 1910, found his way to Washington and Lee in search of new conquests. Clyde is a good fellow, has no bad habits, so far as we know, except capturing all the scholarships when too much energy is not required; for example, Physics Scholarship, '10-'11; English Scholarship, '11-'12; James Mc Dowell Scholarship, '12-'13, Assistant in Chemistry I, '13-'14; President Chemical Society, '13-'14; Secretary-Treasurer Senior Engineering Class, '13-'14. Clyde hopes to get his B. S. in Civil Engineering and Chemistry; he chooses the latter for his vocation, but we think he should make a good politician with all this knowledge.

Post-Graduates

POST GRADS

DANIEL CRUMP BUCHANAN, B. A.

NAGAYA, JAPAN.

Born June 13th, 1892, at Kobe, Japan. Managed to evade the immigration laws and came to this country for an education. Received his B. A. at Fredericksburg College in 1912, and came to Washington and Lee in search of an M. A. degree. This he will receive in June on the strength of his thesis, "The Educational System of Japan." Will teach for several years and then enter the missionary service in the Land of the Sunrise. Member Graham-Lee Literary Society and Albert Sidney Boat Club.

PAUL DULANEY CONVERSE, B. A., Φ B K, Δ Σ P

Behold the wise head of the School of Commerce—Granville's right hand man, Instructor in Commerce and Economics, and Monitor of the Lee's Dormitory. At the end of this year he will have, in addition to his B. A., an M. A. degree and a certificate in the School of Commerce. His college activities are too many and varied to be listed below. For list of same, see 1913 CALYX. He is as sure to enter politics as the sun is sure to rise, and he will become a Tennessee constable or American Ambassador Extraordinary to Afghanistan or Senegambia, or some other such place.

JOHN EPPES MARTIN, B. A., Α Χ Ρ

WAVERLY, VA.

John is a landmark around here, having entered here in 1908, but, gentle reader, do not think for an instant that it has taken him all this time to get a couple of degrees, for that is one of the simple things that he does. You can see for yourself what he has been doing. Tennis Club; Tidewater Club; Harry Lee Boat Club; Representative on Inter-fraternity Dance Committee, '11; Master Masons' Club; Executive Committee, '14; President of Tidewater Club, '14; Taught school at Wakefield High School, '12, and at Kenbridge High School, '13; Instructor in English at Washington and Lee, '14. He will enter the teaching profession or newspaper work.

Versatility in the Realm of Sport

WASHINGTON AND LEE holds a distinct position in having a large coterie of versatile athletes, apt in many sports. Despite the difference in requirements the divers games demand, there are many wearers of Washington and Lee monograms who have earned their tridents in football and baseball or varying combinations.

Topping the select are Big Buck Miles and Little Jiggs Donahue. The auburn-crested athlete has earned monograms in three sports—football, basketball and track. In basketball and football, Miles has been endowed with the captaincy, and has proved as adept in one sport as in another. His long discus throws, in track, his fierce tackles in football, and his sensational tosses in basketball, have gained him an enviable position in every pastime.

“Jiggs” Donahue has proved almost as susceptible to honors, as has Miles. The plucky little Irishman has been chosen to lead football next season, and captains baseball this year, for his second time. At quarterback on the gridiron, Donahue proved nearly as sensational as behind the bat in baseball, where he attracted major league notice. By a rare gift, he is also endowed with managing capacities, for his third monogram was earned by directing the business end of basketball.

Charlie Lile is the third member of the athletes possessing three tridents. Lile gained monograms in baseball, as twirler; football, as halfback; and in basketball, at guard. Coach Bill Raftery, before his days of active service waned, accomplished a like feat, for he starred at third in baseball, scintillated at forward in basketball, and played at quarter in football.

Rivaling this quartette in fame, with the possession of two of the cherished emblems are a galaxy of hefties. In Cy Young there is a possibility of another member to the famous four. Young starred at halfback, on the gridiron, and played quite consistently at guard, in basketball. In all likelihood, he will be endowed with his third trident as center fielder on the Varsity nine.

Rotundal Fats Miller has annexed several monograms in football, and has also captained the gridiron squad in excellent style. But where Fats is just as powerful, is in the shotput event on the track team.

Dave Bone, in his active service with the Generals, proved as adept at effecting end runs as receiving the slants of speed from Harry Moran's trusty arm. Jim Somerville qualified for the select when he combined track and rowing, winning an oar with the Albert Sidney crew and a monogram in track for the hammer throw, Jonah Larrick, with a combination of the pole vaulter on the track team, and pitcher on the baseball team, carved a niche among the famed, while Walter Terry was admitted to membership on the baseball and football ticket. The Arkansan was a heavy hitter on the General nine, where he cavorted at shortstop, and not less luminously at halfback on the gridiron team.

Available records show that the captaincy of two teams of the major sports has been attained by four—Burk, track and basketball; Donahue, baseball and football; Miles, basketball and football; Streit, football and basketball. It remains for the future to produce an athlete to captain more than two teams, or earn monograms in a fourth major sport.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

Resume Football Season, 1913

LOOMING up pre-eminently as a power on the gridiron, Washington and Lee experienced a phenomenal season in 1913. The mighty General machine maintained an invincible clip until the final af-fray of the momentous year. Eight formidable elevens had been overwhelmed without crossing the White and Blue goal line; two hundred points had been registered; the last lap of the keen race approached with the title hanging upon the outcome of the Thanks-giving contest with the North Carolina A. and M. eleven.

The puissant General aggregation pluckily withstood the assaults of the powerful Aggies for three heated quarters, but quaked in the last period, as Tenney catapulted over the line with the fateful touchdown that deprived Washington and Lee of the South Atlantic title, and rendered the football situation an insoluble enigma.

No eleven was assigned a rating superior to the General Machine—Washington and Lee, North Carolina A. and M., Georgetown and Virginia being ac-corded an equal standing in the mooted situation. There was no undefeated eleven in the South Atlantic division, but withal none exhibited the record of the hefty Generals.

Coach "Larry" Dowd, cleverly aided by Clovis Moonmaw and Bill Raf-tery, devised a versatile attack for his benchmen and whipped the likely talent into a daring and consistent team. The backfield—Donahue, Lile, Young and Beuhring—was a sparkling combination of speed, weight and ability. The line, which fought so consistently and strongly throughout the campaign was composed of seven game, mighty players, who checked the opposition in nine battles to as many scant points. The coaches maintained a congenial spirit of determination among the gridironists, and met every demand with exceptional ability.

The campaign opened with a brilliant victory over the Medical College of Virginia. The vaunted defense of the Medicos failed to check the speedy spurts of Dorabue and Young, and suffered a 27 to 0 downfall. In the second struggle, which was replete with brilliant runs and mediocre defensive play, the Generals out-battled Gallaudet, 24 to 0. Encountering a wanton display of open tactics, the Generals were baffled by St. Johns at the outset, but recovered quickly and registered a third scoreless triumph, 19 to 0.

The first inclement weather was experienced in Baltimore, when Johns Hopkins was met and humbled. In the opening period, Halfback Frank Tippet drop-kicked successfully from the 38-yard line, scoring the first point of the season against Washington and Lee. After a slump in the opening period, the White and Blue spurred, and closed with a 34 to 3 victory.

The fifth successive triumph was registered over Wake Forest, when the Carolinians were unable to withstand the fierce charges of the backfield, losing 33 to 0. With a varied attack, the Generals achieved the first signal victory of the campaign when V. P. I. was humbled in the annual clash in Roanoke, 21 to 0. The cadets were completely out-battled in every period of the game, Beuhring and Miles starring.

The mighty Washington and Lee team maintained its merry clip with a signal success over North Carolina, in Lynchburg when the White and Blue registered two touchdowns in a driving downpour. Young's dazzling run of 76 yards to touchdown crowned the battle in the mma. The eleven showed its most telling form of the season, when the eighth consecutive victory was scored over West Virginia, 28 to 0, in Charleston, the brilliant runs of Beuhring, Terry and Young crowning the triumph.

Having overwhelmed eight formidable gridiron machines, Washington and Lee, with the South Atlantic title at hazard, and with its goal line uncrossed, crumbled before the daring Aggies, and yielded the gonfalon in a gruelling 6 to 0 fight.

"Buck"

R. M. MILES, TACKLE
"BUCK"

Towering above the greensward, the General captain led many determined and fruitful charges against the opposition. The Auburn-crested leader played in fine form throughout the season, his forward passing, tackling and end runs earning him an All South Atlantic position. "Buck" was a scrapper in every clash and was one of the greatest defensive players of the General eleven. His superb playing featured the victory over V. P. I. and other momentous contests. As a leader, Miles more than filled the job.

"Jiggs"

E. A. DONAHUE, QUARTERBACK
"JIGGS"

Heady direction, with peppery "Jiggs" in command, annexed many battles for the White and Blue during the thrilling campaign. His leading ability was recognized by his mates and the daring little quarterback was endowed with the captainship of the varsity for 1914. Donahue, with his wits, speed and deft toe, proved the sensation of the year, until injuries slackened his pace. The little son of Erin booted five field goals, besides dazzling the followers with his thrilling end runs. Hail the pilot of the Elcock special for 1914.

H. N. BARKER, END
"HINK"

Wreaking havoc with the end darts of the opponents, "Hink" concluded his service with the Generals with a splendid season. Barker proved a pure tackler and was a consistent receiver of the forward pass. His tackling and all-around defensive work in the battle with A. and M. was one of the redeeming features of the loss.

"Hink"

M. S. BARROW, CENTER
"B"

When little "Jiggs" Donahue signalled for a pass, he was assured that the ball would sail right into his eager grasp, for Barrow was on the business end. Barrow, with the consistency of a Waterbury, scored a "perfect" in passing the pigskin. Despite the inclement elements, Barrow failed to pass inaccurately throughout the season. On the offense, the elongated center was a "bear" at running interference and proved an adept tackler. His tackling featured in the North Carolina set-to.

"B"

D. B. BRYAN

D. B. BRYAN, TACKLE

The emergency call brought this mighty Texan into play at tackle and guard. The coaches injected Bryan into the fray quite frequently and he battled so ably that he earned a Washington and Lee trident. The Texan's lengthy arms often arrested the movement of some ambitious back. His speed showed great possibilities for the future.

"DING"

DINGWALL, GUARD

"DING"

When it came to stopping the march of the opposition, "Ding" proved a nifty arrester. The big Teuton filled in so acceptably when the S. O. S. sign was placarded that the coaches concluded his substitution added strength to the eleven and donated a trident. What "Ding" lacked in speed was more than offset by his prowess and avoidupois.

FRIEND, FULLBACK

"Vic"

Proving a demon when it came to wriggling through a broken field, "Vic" was one of the stars of the varsity squad. The silent fullback was a wonderful line plunger and was an elusive runner in a broken field. "Vic's" entrancing twists baffled the opposing tacklers. He filled in at full with joyous eclat until "Cannon Ball" Beuhling entered the fray. Friend was the only Freshman in the backfield to gain a monogram, while Bryan and Dingwall lauded tridents on the line.

"Vic"

R. L. BEUHLING, FULLBACK

"CANNON BALL"

The irresistible fullback gained a late start, due to injuries, but the big plunger more than offset his delay with wonderful work in the important clashes. When the mighty mainstay of the Generals lowered his head, gained speed and shot forward, nothing seemed able to deter him. "Cannon Ball," with his repertoire of twists and plunges proved the most dependable line plunger in the big battles. On the secondary defense, he starred with his vigorous tackles. Beuhling closed a remarkable career with Washington and Lee.

"CANNON BALL"

"TEX"

J. P. HEATT, END

"TEX"

Heatt was one of the speed merchants of the varsity eleven. Although "Tex" was the lightest player on the team, his speed and accurate tackling more than offset his scanty avoirdupois. Heatt was one of the most dependable receivers of the forward pass, while his defensive play featured in the A. and M. struggle.

"CHARLIE"

C. T. LILE, HALFBACK

"CHARLIE"

A superb defensive player and a daring leader of interference made Lile a valuable asset in the backfield. The sun-kissed crest was frequently seen in front of Donahue and Young, forcing a route for a long end dart. "Charlie" played havoc with the intricate plays of the opposition on the secondary defense.

J. H. MILLER, GUARD

"FATS"

"Fats" concluded his sparkling gridiron career with the Generals with a season in which he was unanimously awarded an all South Atlantic position at guard. The rotundal concluded a wonderful season—failing to miss one of eleven attempts at goal after touch down. The yawning holes "Fats" provided for the backfield would have permitted a wagon access. His tackling, blocking and general playing was a distinct feature of the campaign and in the West Virginia, North Carolina and V. P. I. clashes.

"FATS"

W. H. NEBLETT, GUARD

"FLIT"

Neblett, with dogged determination, fought so spiritedly at guard that he was assigned a regular position at guard after considerable service in past years with the scrubs. "Flit" proved a dependable and steady performer. He was a skilled tackler and an able opener for the backs.

"FLIT"

"BILL"

W. H. SMITH, QUARTERBACK

"BILL"

Soaring spirals for fifty and sixty yards was Bill's forte and earned him a monogram. Although Smith starred in punting, he evidenced his speed by long gains against Johns Hopkins and Wake Forest. Bill was ushered into the fray at critical stages, for his twinkling toe was one of the surest ground gainers in the varsity repertoire.

"TED"

E. B. SHULTZ, TACKLE

"TED"

Ranging six feet four, "Ted" was a counterpart of Captain Miles, and the two were conceded to be the greatest duo of tacklers in the division. Shultz was the most sensational defensive player in the line, while he opened up gaping holes for the backs on the "tackle shift" maneuver. The huge Teuton starred in practically every game of the season.

W. W. TERRY, HALFBACK

"WALTER"

Held in reserve, when aggressive tactics were needed, Terry was injected into the battle. The plucky halfback was a sure ground gainer, and a nifty line plunger. Injuries withheld Walter from the game until the last lap, but he proved a sensation in the West Virginia clash.

"WALTER"

H. K. YOUNG, HALFBACK

"CY"

"Cy" was a whirlwind on the gridiron and a versatile player. The speedy halfback led the scoring proclivities with 54 of 200 points. His daring spurts through broken fields featured the offensive display, his sensational run of 76 yards to touchdown against North Carolina being the most marvelous. In kicking, "Cy" scintillated with long spirals and also booted 12 goals after touchdowns out of 13 attempts. He starred in practically every conflict, despite trying injuries.

"CY"

Resume Class Football Season

RAUGHT with thrills, the class football season was marked by sensational clashes that finally endowed the Freshmen with the championship of Washington and Lee. The annual games were exceptional this season, for, although the players lacked the training and practice of the regulars, the teams evidenced fine fighting spirit and no mean ability.

The style of play in every contest was of a marked sameness, being mostly straight line plays and end runs, as the insufficiency of practice would lead one to infer. Naturally, the game was open with a great amount of individual work, but considering the scanty training the elevens played with notable consistency. Forward passes were frequently resorted to, and it was through the unsuccessful attempt of the Juniors to employ the pass, that Tarleton was enabled to gain a victory for the Sophomores.

The hero of the series was undoubtedly Tarleton, the Sophomore halfback, whose dazzling achievement of scoring three touchdowns on the ill-timed passes of the Juniors was unparalleled. He received strong support in the Soph backfield—Bagley, Nelson and Sullivan. The line plunging of Peake was the feature of the Junior offense, while Neal and Hatton also played effectively. For the Seniors, Banseman, at full; McCallie, at quarter, and Flowers, at halfback, featured. The Freshmen had a galaxy of stars on the team that won the championship. The slashing runs of Wadsworth and Faulkner, with the consistent line plunges of Holbrook and Burton were the features of the Freshmen-Senior struggle. The lines of each team deserve great praise for, although weak at times, it was noticeable that not a single touchdown was scored through their ranks.

The season was opened by the victory of the Freshmen over the Seniors, 7 to 2. After the Seniors had surprised the Freshmen by hurling one of their sprinters back of his line for a safety, the Freshmen retaliated with Faulkner's touchdown, after Holbrook had advanced the ball within striking distance of the goal. The only injury of the season occurred in this game, when Lancaster sustained a broken ankle.

Intercepting three forward passes for three touchdowns, Tarleton, single-handed, enabled the Sophomores to defeat the Juniors in the most exciting game, 21 to 0. For the most part the game was warmly contested in the early quarters, when the ball was see-sawed up and down the field. But in the half half, the Juniors essayed the forward passes and were rewarded with a defeat for their daring.

The last game, the play-off for the title between the Freshmen and the Sophomores, promised to be the most interesting of all. But injuries and lack of practice, forced the Sophs to relinquish the championship to the Freshmen through forfeit.

BASEBALL TEAM, 1913

Resume Baseball Season, 1913

RECRUITED largely from the influx of new material, the Washington and Lee baseball team experienced a season of moderate success. Around a nucleus of five varsity players, Coach Orth developed a nine that failed to cope with the usual success of the preceding teams, ending the season with an even break.

Hardly had the machine been perfected, before a new eligibility ruling deprived the Generals of a star receiver in Stewart, while a galaxy of stars were forced into retirement. But the Generals fought bravely, developed a pitching staff from a small array of inexperienced talent and met the leading aggregations with varying success.

With Captain Donahue, First Baseman Peeples, Outfielder Turbyfill and Second Baseman Lancaster as a nucleus, the coaches filled in with the most likely candidates. The greatest source of anxiety was focused on the mound, where a complete hurling staff had to be developed. Finally, Brower, Larrick and Meyers were primed for the clashes and given positions on the mound.

The staff of inexperienced pitchers battled bravely, but hitting strength was lacking. Either of the three outfielders failed to hit as much as .200, while the sticking of the infield was proportionally light. Captain Donahue, the captain, proved the individual star of the squad, hitting .324 and receiving in fine fettle. He proved an able leader.

The season opened with a premier clash with Holy Cross on Wilson field, but the Generals were beaten in a heart-rending game, 2 to 1, although Holy Cross was out-hit. On the following day, the Generals journeyed to Norfolk, where Meyer's wildness permitted the Yale collegians to win easily, 7 to 2. The first victory was scored over Richmond College when Larrick battled the opposition and triumphed, 8 to 1.

Returning for an extended stay, Washington and Lee divided a two game series with Pennsylvania State, losing the first in a free hitting contest, 10 to 6, and winning the second, 4 to 3, with a batting rally in the closing innings.

St. Johns was downed in a heavy hitting encounter, while Larrick defeated the Roanoke team of the Virginia State league. Davidson's invasion resulted in an even break, Washington and Lee winning the first and losing the second. The University of North Carolina aggregation suffered an 8 to 7 downfall, while another victory over the University of South Carolina enthused the followers of the White and Blue. North Carolina A. and M.'s aggressive team halted the winning streak of the Generals when the Aggies nosed out in a 4 to 3 contest. Trinity was administered a 6 to 3 drubbing, while West Virginia divided a two game series and closed the local season.

The invasion of the South proved a dismal failure, Washington and Lee losing six of seven games by overwhelming scores. Georgia inaugurated the series of defeats with two easy triumphs. South Carolina continued the rout with a victory in the first battle, but the Generals captured the second encounter, 11 to 9. North Carolina A. and M. annexed a thirteen inning thriller, 4 to 1, while the season closed with a defeat at the hands of Trinity, 8 to 7.

If preliminary battles may be taken as a criterion of ability, Washington and Lee will have a representative nine in 1914. Led by "Peppery Jiggs" Dorahue, who spurned a big league offer to again direct the fortunes of the White and Blue, Coach Mahoney has an array of comely talent from which to evolve his team.

BASKETBALL TEAM, 1913-1914

"Rog"

"Rog"

Captain Bear proved a mainstay of the Generals, in the sporadic spurt, and on the disastrous tour. The big forward played a remarkable game on both offensive and defensive, figuring largely in the brilliant pass work. His deft shots from the floor were highly sensational, for Bear was considered one of the most expert shots in the South Atlantic division. Justly, he was awarded a position on the All South Atlantic five.

R. M. MILES, CENTER

"BUCK"

Buck Miles did more to revolutionize the style of basketball than any other cavorter in the division. Buck had not glided about the floor long, before he decided that it lacked something—and after a short while he concluded that it was a bit of football. Soon he introduced the 30-yard runs, the flying tackles and other gridiron measures. Miles was the most sensational member of the squad. He led in scoring, effected the most dazzling shots of the year and was regarded as the best center in the division.

"EDDIE"

E. S. FROST, GUARD

"EDDIE"

Determination figured largely in the success of Eddie Frost. For three arduous years, Eddie struggled to gain a regular position on the first quintette, but was cast aside. But this season, Frost displayed splendid form and was given the sixth monogram on the fast General five. While the "G. O. M." did not scintillate until the Northern trip, he played a strong game on this invasion.

A. W. MCCAIN, RIGHT FORWARD

"MACK"

In size, McCain was the midget of the squad, but what Mack lacked in stature was offset by his speed and skill. Within the shooting zone, McCain was as dangerous a shooter as the squad possessed, for his eye maintained a strangle hold on the rim of the basket. He was also an accurate passer and a good defensive player.

C. T. LILE, LEFT GUARD

"CHARLIE"

With the tenacity of a Boston Terrier, Lile stuck to his man at guard. Charlie played on the defensive throughout the season, and, due to his efforts in guarding and interception, the opposition fared poorly on the offense. Occasionally the anburn-topped guard showed that he knew the finer points of the game by locating the netting for a few goals.

H. K. YOUNG, RIGHT GUARD

"CY"

Cy's speed was a big aid to the Generals on both offensive and defensive play. The speedy lad starred with long dribbles, for the length of the floor that usually resulted in field goals, on the toss that followed. But Young's speed was best exhibited when he shadowed Tracy, Stickley and other speed merchants around the floor with ease. Cy was one of the cleverest passers on the quintette.

Resume Basket-Ball Season, 1914

INGLING decisive victories with complete reversals, Washington and Lee experienced a season of surprises in basketball. The campaign was opened with a meteoric spurt of five consecutive victories over strong quintettes. The title-deciding struggle with Virginia resulted in a draw, but was followed by the last victory on the local court. The Northern trip was fraught with disasters, resulting in five defeats and one victory.

Conflicting claims have placed the South Atlantic title in an enigmatical position. The foremost rivals are Catholic University, Virginia, Georgetown, and Washington and Lee. Neither of the quints failed to suffer defeat. But for the disastrous results attending the team on the Northern trip, Washington and Lee would have a equal rating.

As usual the Varsity failed to suffer a defeat upon the local court. George Washington University, University of South Carolina, Catholic University, V. P. I., Maryland Agricultural College, and North Carolina A. and M. were overwhelmed by the superb work of the fast General team. The Varsity defeated Catholic University, 26 to 9; George Washington, 30 to 17; and V. P. I., 48 to 17, in games which were very decisive in result.

The first setback experienced was a draw with Virginia. In the tension of what was purported to be the title-deciding game—in view of the previous overwhelming defeat of Catholic University—a misunderstanding occurred and the deadlock was never dissolved. Immediately offers were made for a play-off of the tie, but Virginia refused and wisely for its cherished hopes.

The Northern trip was inaugurated with a startling reverse at the hands of the V. P. I. quint which registered a 21 to 19 victory. The series of reverses were continued when Catholic University trounced the Varsity. Georgetown was next to contribute to the downfall of the Generals, while the invincible Navy quintette scored an easy victory. A triumph over Pratt Institute, the only victory on the fateful trip, served to relieve the monotony. The season of surprises closed with a defeat by the City College of New York.

The wearying grind of nightly clashes sapped the effectiveness of the Generals. The form and snap, which characterized the play in the early games, was lacking on the Northern invasion. In only two matches, with the Navy and Pratt, did the quint display its best form. But, in view of the unquestioned advantage of playing on a home floor, Washington and Lee fared well, for nothing but praise was given the team for its showing.

Richmond, March 8—Georgetown returned victors in relay race. F. B. Hayne and E. F. Burk finished third in half mile and fifty-yard hurdles, respectively.

Blacksburg, April 19—V. P. I. won the dual meet, with the points V. P. I., 72; Washington and Lee, 45.

Baltimore, May 3—South Atlantic Intercollegiate Athletic Association meet—Washington and Lee scored three points, entering only a few events.

TRACK TEAM, 1913

Resume Track Season, 1913

THE track season of 1913 was inaugurated with a busy and successful winter of indoor work. Training began early in January, and with Carter Glass and "Monty" Hayne to form a nucleus, the best relay team on record was developed. Three indoor meets were participated in. At the Johns Hopkins Fifth Armory meet on February 15th, the team composed of Glass, Frank and "Monty" Hayne and Wade, finished third. Hopkins and Virginia winning first and second, respectively. But that the team had not then rounded to form was shown two weeks later at the Georgetown University meet, on March 1st, when M. Hayne, Wade, Dillingham, and Glass in the face of a 10-yard handicap, from false starts, scored a brilliant victory over the Carlisle Indians and the Hopkins team, which had now to be satisfied with third place. The title to the South Atlantic relay championship now lying between Washington and Lee, and Georgetown; the two teams were brought together the following week at the Richmond College—Richmond Blues meet. But, though Washington and Lee's anchor man, Glass, featured the race with a great finish, its colors were lowered before the superior speed of the Blue and Grey quartet, composing a team with few equals in the country.

The outdoor season was epoch-making in the establishment of a new event on the athletic calendar—an event which by creating what Washington and Lee has largely lacked—a connecting link with the Preparatory schools of the South, is full significance for the future development of Athletics here. The first annual interscholastic track and field games were held on Wilson field, Saturday, April 26th. Twenty schools were entered from the States of North Carolina, Virginia, Tennessee, Maryland, New York, and West Virginia. Sixty-eight young Athletes took part. Brooklyn Poly. Prep., of Brooklyn, N. Y., proved the winners; closely pressed by Castle Heights, of Lebanon, Tennessee. Staunton Military Academy, and Manassas High School tied for third place. The fame of this meet was spread among the preparatory schools of the South and East, with the result that the Interscholastic meet of 1914 is to be participated in by a much larger number of schools, drawn from a still more extended area. To the untiring efforts of Dr. Pollard, and the excellent work of Manager Richardson, the success of these games were in great part due.

The dual meet scheduled for April 12th, with North Carolina, at Chapel Hill was cancelled by that institution. On April 19th, the annual meet between V. P. I. and Washington and Lee was held in Blacksburg, V. P. I. winning, 72 to 45. But, when it is considered that Washington and Lee was practically unrepresented in the shot-put, pole vault, high jump, and hurdles, due to the inability of Terry and Peck to accompany the team, and to severe injuries sustained by Captain Burke and ex-captain Glass; this showing made in a meet on foreign territory, was remarkable. Yonan broke his own record for the broad jump, covering twenty-one feet, nine and one-half inches. The spring season was concluded at the South Atlantic Intercollegiate Athletic Association meet in Baltimore, but with the team's principal point winner, Glass, out of the running, as well as Captain Burke, a good showing was impossible. Points were won by Yonan, Thorn, Wade, and Miles, who took second in the discus, with a throw of 111 feet. In the election of officers for the ensuing year in the association, Dr. Pollard was honored with the presidency.

The annual fall marathon, run over the National Highway, was held October 29th. It was won by Johnson in record time. Engelbert came in second, Barnes third, and Buckingham fourth. Reviewing the situations as a whole, it must be said that track athletics have not made the rapid progress so marked in other branches of sport at Washington and Lee. The outstanding needs are for a cinder track; a broad track, for winter work; for a special track; and for a larger proportional appropriation from the treasury of the athletic association coach. But the athletic authorities are already planning to meet these needs, and, when this is done, track will take its rightful place as the peer of all other intercollegiate sports.

Resume Gymnasium Work, 1914

THE gymnasium team was forced to abandon its annual exhibitions and matches for 1914. The disastrous fire of the previous February, that burned the old gymnasium, halted the gymnasium work in the heyday of its progress. The lack of material and the inadequacy of facilities for practice prevented plans for the future, and, as the result, the mat artists suspended operations this year.

But a revival of the work is anticipated for next season, as abundant material has been shown in the classes. The preparations for next season will be attended to by Captain Bush and Manager Larriek. During the past few years, a greater interest has been evinced in the gym, and it is believed that it will grow greater in popularity.

At the time the team was halted, prospects were exceedingly bright. With Bush as captain, the personnel of the squad included, Larriek Glasgow, Horner, William Miller, Mangus, and Showell. Under the supervision of Dr. Pollard, a superb organization is expected for 1915, while the annual contest is also expected to be scheduled. The matter of intercollegiate matches will be given due consideration.

A Tribute to Hanna

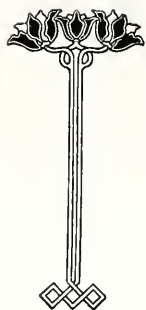

Showing as apt ability in managing football teams as temperamental prima donnas that are wont to frequent Weinberg's palatial Lyric, "Mark" Hanna has earned an unrivalled reputation in money circles. Since endowing his august presence upon the university, "Mark" has figured in almost every phase of college life, from rushing the can to chanting Y. M. C. A. psalms, but has evidenced his greatest ability in taking care of other people's kale.

Shekels flock to Hanna with irresistible pressure, and he has never been accused of throwing them away with the same ease or reckless abandon. His joyful debut in managerial ranks was effected in 1912, as manager of the Ring-tum Phi. When the session was over, it was discovered that over $200 had been cleared, and the sum was subsequently given to the student body. The following year, 1913-14, "Mark" essayed the double role of manager of the gridiron department and student manager of the Lyric. The same success was evidenced on the gridiron, for John D's only rival deposited over $700 as excess with the athletic association.

Such a feat is unprecedented in Washington and Lee circles, but it is generally conceded that the university never afforded a Hanna. While "Mark" has pictured himself as a promising attorney in Birmingham, his admirers have depicted him either as a money king or governor. If artful manipulations in politics can achieve public approbation, "Mark" will gain it, for he has long been recognized as the foremost string-puller in college, and, with his shrewd business ability, should continue his fruitful career.

ALBERT SIDNEY BOAT CREW

Rowing Resume, 1913

WASHINGTON AND LEE stands in a unique position among Southern colleges in the enjoyment of rowing, a sport almost exclusively confined to the largest Northern and Western institutions. While the prowess of the crews is not tested in intercollegiate regattas, it is featured in the realm of sport, as that athletic event which at Yale, Harvard, Cornell and Princeton rivals the gridiron for popular favor.

Despite the location of Washington and Lee in the heart of Virginia's mountains, the aquatic sport is not indulged in with difficulties, for a mile stretch of perfect course, on the North River, nearby, affords a splendid waterway for the rowers. The University contents itself with annual regattas between the most select crews of the two boat clubs—the Albert Sidney and the Harry Lee.

For thirty-six years, the two rival boat crews have struggled for the supremacy of the university. Since 1874, the two fours have met 36 times, Harry Lee winning 20 matches and Albert Sidney 16. During the last week of school, the two crews cope upon the water and the interest in the outcome is intense.

The 1913 race was spectacular in the extreme, the Harry Lee shell nosing across the line a fraction of a length in the fore of the Albert Sidney crew, after a nip and tuck spurt. Albert Sidney partisans gained some consolation when the Blue second crew defeated the Red under-studies in the preliminary event.

Practice on the river, in preparation for the crowning event, begins in early fall and continues, with a slight delay in the cold season, until the close of the year. Nearly a hundred offer for trials in the shell in hopes of gaining a position.

Dr. J. W. H. Pollard

Inaugurating two distinct features during the past year, Dr. J. W. Pollard, director of athletics, has placed athletics on a very firm foundation. During the past year, Washington and Lee established an annual Inter-Scholastic meet and a regular schedule for the second team.

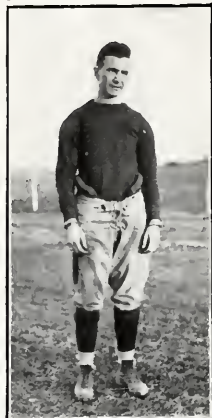

With a keen insight to the advantage, Doctor Pollard engineered a most successful Interscholastic track meet on April 26th. Over twenty of the leading preparatory schools entered the meet that was contested in splendid style, every event being run with clock-like precision. The eighty athletes performed in capital style, and registered fast marks in each event. The meet was won by the Brooklyn Polytechnic Preparatory School.

The success attending the premiere contest was so signal that the interscholastic meet was instituted as an annual affair.

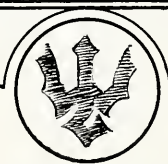

With the advance in track activities there was a corresponding advance in athletics. In football and basketball, the second team was provided with a schedule, thus affording an incentive to greater action on the part of the substitutes and providing a sure means of development of the inexperienced talent.

Under the direction of the genial Doctor Pollard, athletics are becoming more stable, and the success attending the teams is being heightened each succeeding year.

Coaches

FOOT

BALL

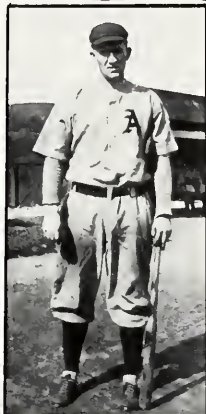

In lavishing praise on the gridiron, due respect should be tendered the coaches, who made such a phenomenal season possible. Cheery Larry Dowd, the hustling product of Princeton, endowed the Generals with the greatest fighting spirit possible, and drove his henchmen through the fast season at a merry clip.

The force of Dowd's personality, combined with his knowledge of modern gridiron maneuvers, gave the Generals a wonderfully strong front. By personal instruction, the peppery little leader instructed his charges in the knacks of the game, and achieved signal success. It was Dowd's first year in collegiate football, but he was very successful, tutoring a team that scored 200 points against a scant nine.

But how Dowd could have secured more able assistance in coaching is difficult to conjecture. Clovis Moonaw, a product of Washington and Lee, proved a powerful aid in instructing the linesmen. When it is stated that but six points were scored on Washington and Lee on touchdowns, the most roseate phrases of praise, on the strength of the line, would fall flat. The charge and hold of the linesmen was the one feature of the season.

Bill Raftery led the second team against the first, and, also coached the backfield. It must be conceded that the second team was the most formidable substitute aggregation the University ever afforded. In directing the backfield, Raftery proved a very valuable asset.

Coaches

BASE

BALL

Had the talent been of the same high-class of coaching in 1913, Washington and Lee would have closed the season with an unbeaten team. With the crafty veteran Al Orth at the head of the mentors, the coaching staff was a splendid trio to guide the young team, but the material was lacking.

Coach Orth fought bravely with his mass of inexperienced talent, attempting to develop an entirely new twirling staff and a winning nine from four regulars. But the task was too arduous for even so capable a leader. But withal the grizzled twirler instructed his charges with great precision in regard to modern methods and paved the way to a more successful following season.

Aiding Coach Orth were Harry Moran and Charley Thompkins, two of the leading products Washington and Lee gave to professional baseball. Moran and Thompkins centered their attention to directing the pitchers, who were young in age and experience, and the value of their wisdom was more than once evidenced by the work of the three pitchers. The year of 1913 was one of development and the moulding was accomplished by master hands.

A Sophomore's Pushball Soliloquy

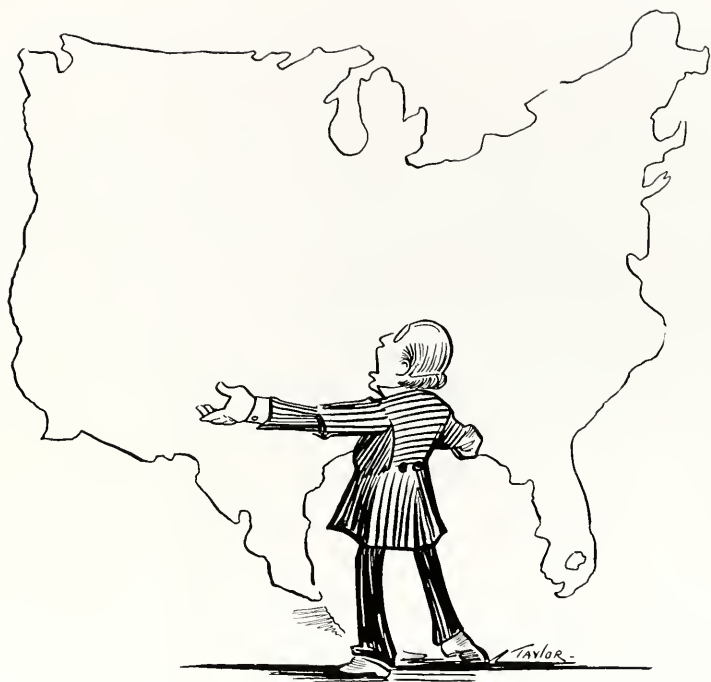

(The Freshmen won the annual pushball fight from the Sophomores, on October 24, by the score of 56 to 0.)

Outnumbered and outweighed from the beginning, but struggling and fighting like mad, we lost the match to the Freshmen, but we gave 'em the best we had. We held our own in the first half—a yard was all that we lost—and that yard made by the Freshmen was made at a terrible cost. We beat 'em and we battered 'em, and we slammed 'em on the frame, and we threw 'em, and we pummelled 'em, and we never missed an aim; we rapped 'em on their ossified beans, we twisted where they wore their cravats, and we practised the running board jump on their tender Freshman slats.

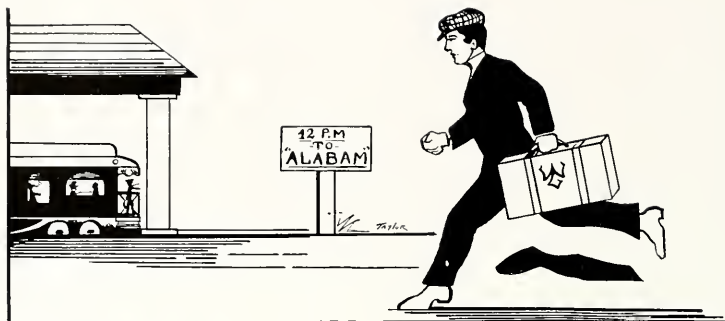

But the saddest part of the story is the one that's yet to come, for it tells the story of our defeat, and the thought of it makes us glum. We came back into the battle, all weary and almost done out, with hardly strength enough left to give a Freshie a man's-size elout. And, then, those wall-eyed Freshmen put their substitutes into play, which put an effective crimp in our hopes of winning the fray. We stood 'em off for a little while, but our weakness paid its toll—they got the ball away from us and before we knew what was happening, they'd pushed it over the goal. Again, we lined up against 'em, but struggle as hard as we could, even our mightiest efforts did not a particle of good. Yard by yard, they gained on us, slowly they forced us back; our strength was quickly waning, we could not resist their attack. Then, from a far-off somewhere, the time-keeper's whistle blew, and the knowledge came home to us that the fight against odds was through.

We were outnumbered and outweighed from the beginning, but struggling and fighting like mad, we lost the match to the Freshmen, but we gave 'em the best we had. Yes, we gave you the best we had, Freshie, but ours were not all of the lot, and we'll have to hand it to you, Freshies, you gave as good as you got. Yes, we did the best we could, Freshies—the best we could have possibly done—we'll hand it to you again, Freshie, you deserved the game that you won.

TIDEWATER

Three hundred and seven years ago our forefathers planted the first permanent English settlement on Jamestown Island, Tidewater, Virginia. In commemoration of this great deed, we think it only appropriate, and in keeping with these sacred memories to plant in this school, that was made possible by the Father of Our Country, who was from Tidewater, Virginia, a club dedicating it to them and calling it the Tidewater Club.

ABRAM PENN STAPLES

A VIRGINIA GENTLEMAN

OF THE

OLD SCHOOL

ABRAM PENN STAPLES

Abram Penn Staples

THE CALYX for the year 1912, was dedicated to ABRAM PENN STAPLES, in cordial recognition of his effective work and attractive manhood, as well as in distinct testimony of the affection and esteem of the University student body.

This number records the fact that his personal life and labors among us, though now ended, will be held in grateful remembrance by the people of this University and community.

The characteristics which endeared "Judge" Staples (as he was universally and affectionately known in Lexington), came to him as a birthright. He sprung from a race of people who have done their full share in building up the social life, intellectual standards, and a civilization of which no Virginian has been or need be ashamed.

Born to affluence unknown to himself, he was, however, reared under the same straightened conditions which was the common heritage of those whose youth and early manhood came along in those years which immediately succeeded our great struggle for constitutional right, and which had left Virginia the scarred battlefield and burying-ground of armies that were.

With him, the difficulties which hampered his continuous school and college work created and developed an intellectual self-dependence and a mental poise, which brought to him the distinct habit of independent thinking, which, during his entire career as an active member of the Bar, and later as a member of the Law Faculty of this University, above everything else, contributed to his distinguished record as a lawyer and a teacher of the law. He established for himself a high place in that small class, of whom it can be said: "He knew the law and the reason thereof."

Graduating in the profession of his choice at Richmond College, in 1881, he at once located at Martinsville, in Henry County, Virginia, where he spent the earlier years of his professional career. He was not long in establishing for himself a substantial practice. Lawyers and clients soon recognized the qualities of mind which invited confidence in his ability, and a character based upon unswerving integrity that retained a confidence once imposed. It has been the fortune of few lawyers in Virginia to establish themselves so quickly in the foremost rank usually reserved for the veterans in the profession. This distinction, however, came to Mr. Staples very early in his career.

While living at Martinsville, he was called upon to serve his district in the Virginia Senate, an office which he held for a period of four years, having declined to become a candidate for re-election. Although this position was the only political office he ever held, yet, during his entire life, he was an earnest student of the public affairs of the State and country, and was always reckoned with as a factor in shaping the policies which were intended to better public conditions.

In the year 1890, he removed to the city of Roanoke, and at once and easily assumed, and maintained a commanding position at the Bar of that city for a period of some fifteen years. During that time, few litigated cases of substantial importance were tried in the courts of that city unless one side or the other had the benefit of his counsel and advice.

In 1904, he became a member of the Law Faculty of this University, and the remainder of his life was devoted, with faithful and generous activity, to the service to which he had committed himself. It was during these years that the University body came within the sphere of his singular attractions of mind and heart. His sympathies and friendship for young men led to a companionship, both in the class room and on the campus, that created to a remarkable degree attachments that will always be preserved and cherished by a large class of young men who have felt that their lives have been enriched and ennobled by contact with the ideals of right-living and high thinking, which he set before them, as the best achievements of the profession for which he was preparing them.

His work in the lecture room was of the highest order. A clear and accurate thinker himself, it was not difficult for him to unfold to the class, in forceful expression, the intricacies of the law, and to develop the reason of it. Each proposition, when stated by him, seemed to follow in natural and logical sequence.

Mr. Staples was never of robust health, and yet the amount of thorough and painstaking work that he accomplished in spite of physical handicaps was always a matter of comment and admiration by those with whom he had intimate association. His high sense of duty, perhaps, caused him to lay upon himself burdens too heavy to be borne by one not strong enough to do all the things that his generous impulses impelled him to assume.

As the result of a short illness, Mr. Staples died at Roanoke, where he had gone to have the benefit of hospital treatment, on the thirtieth day of September, 1913.

It was fitting that his remains should be borne to their last resting place by young members of the Bar, who had received their legal training under him, and in whose behalf he had laboured so excellently and so unselfishly.

Historical Sketch of Washington and Lee

AUGUSTA ACADEMY

1749-1776

DURING the early part of the eighteenth century a stream of Scotch-Irish immigrants began to spread over the mountainous parts of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. One of its branches penetrated far into the valley of the Shenandoah in Virginia. They brought with them the devotion to religion and education which they had manifested in Scotland and Ireland. The settlers in Augusta County, in 1747, established a school about fifteen miles southwest of what is now the city of Staunton, and named it the Augusta Academy. Its first principal was Robert Alexander. His associate and immediate successor was Rev. John Brown.

LIBERTY HALL

1776-1782

The successor of Mr. Brown was Rev. William Graham, a graduate of Princeton. During his college days Mr. Graham was a classmate and close associate of Henry Lee, who became a distinguished cavalry officer during the war of the Revolution, and whose son, Robert E. Lee, was yet more distinguished in the Civil War of the next century. On May 6th, 1776, the name Augusta Academy was changed to Liberty Hall, and in 1870 the school was moved to the immediate vicinity of Lexington.

LIBERTY HALL ACADEMY

1782-1798

Through the influence of Mr. Graham, Liberty Hall was incorporated by the legislature of Virginia, in October, 1782, as Liberty Hall Academy. It had been for a short time under the care of the presbytery of Hanover, but it received now a charter, under the terms of which the board of trustees became independent and self-perpetuating. In 1793 a stone building was erected, in which Mr. Graham continued his labors until his resignation, in 1796.

Mr. Graham died in 1799, and was buried in Richmond. In May, 1911, his remains were transferred to Lexington, and interred near the chapel of the institution which he had founded more than a century previously.

In May, 1913, the remains of General Henry Lee were brought from Georgia to Virginia. They were deposited in the mausoleum, at Lexington, at the side of his distinguished son, and within a few yards from the grave of his college friend.

WASHINGTON ACADEMY

1798-1813

The first important gift received by Liberty Hall Academy was conferred by George Washington. In recognition of his services in the Revolution the legislature of Virginia, in 1784, presented to him a number of shares in a canal company. Washington refused to accept these for his own benefit, but after some years of delay his attention was called to Liberty Hall Academy, to which he soon afterward gave them.

The generous gift by Washington was gratefully accepted by the trustees of the academy. Their letter of acknowledgment was preceded by an act of the legislature, in January, 1798, changing the name of the school to Washington Academy. To this letter, the following reply was given:

Mount Vernon, 17th June, 1798.

GENTLEMEN—Unaccountable as it may seem, it is nevertheless true that the address with which you were pleased to honor me, dated the 12th of April, never came into my hands until the 14th inst.

To promote literature in this rising empire and to encourage the arts have ever been amongst the warmest wishes of my heart, and if the donation which the generosity of the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Virginia has enabled me to bestow on Liberty Hall—now by your politeness called Washington Academy—is likely to prove a means to accomplishing these ends, it will contribute to the gratification of my desire.

Sentiments, like those which have flowed from your pen excite my gratitude, whilst I offer my best vows for the prosperity of the Academy, and for the honor and happiness of those under whose auspices it is conducted.

GEO. WASHINGTON.

Trustees of Washington Academy.

The property thus bestowed on Washington Academy still yields an annual income of three thousand dollars to Washington and Lee University.

The bequest of Washington served to inspire another gift. The Cincinnati Society was an organization of surviving officers formed at the close of the Revolutionary War, with branches in each of the several States. In 1802, the Virginia branch decided to disband. Inspired by the example of Washington, they bestowed their funds upon the academy which now bore his name. The accumulated value of the fund was about twenty-five thousand dollars.

In December, 1802, the academy building was destroyed by fire, and in 1803 the work of the school was conducted in rented buildings within the limits of Lexington. Before the end of 1804 a building was constructed on the grounds of the present university, from which the ruins of the old academy are still visible.

WASHINGTON COLLEGE 1813-1871

By act of the legislature in 1813, the name Washington Academy was changed to Washington College.

In 1826 an important impulse was received through a bequest, the ultimate value of which was over forty-six thousand dollars, from John Robinson, a native of Ireland, a soldier under Washington, and during his last years a trustee of the college.

The three endowments already secured, amounting to but little more than one hundred thousand dollars, formed the financial foundation on which Washington College rested until nearly three-fourths of the nineteenth century were completed.

Soon after the outbreak of the Civil War the work of the college was discontinued, most of its students enlisting in the Confederate army, under the name Liberty Hall Volunteers. The buildings and other property were much injured when Lexington was occupied by the Federal army in June, 1864. At the close of the war, the college, being without income, borrowed money on the private credit of some of the trustees for the repair of the buildings, and the work of rehabilitation was at once begun. About thirty years afterward the Congress of the United States granted remuneration for the destruction of property by the invading army.

On August 4th, 1865, General Robert E. Lee was elected president. After carefully considering the subject he accepted in the following letter, part of which we emphasize:

POWHATAN CO., 24 Aug., '65.

GENTLEMEN—I have delayed for some days replying to your letter of the 5th inst., informing me of my election by the Board of Trustees to the Presidency of Washington College, from a desire to give the subject due consideration. Fully impressed with the responsibilities of the office, I have feared that I should be unable to discharge its duties to the satisfaction of the Trustees, or to the benefit of the country. The proper education of youth requires not only great ability, but, I fear, more strength than I now possess, for I do not feel able to undergo the labor of conducting classes in regular course of instruction. I could not, therefore, undertake more than general administration and supervision of the institution. There is another subject which has caused me serious reflection, and is, I think, worthy of the consideration of the Board. Being excluded from the terms of amnesty in the proclamation of the President of the United States of the 29th of May last, and an object of censure to a portion of the country, I have thought it probable that my occupation of the position of President might draw upon the College a feeling of hostility, and I should, therefore, cause injury to an institution which it would be my highest desire to advance. I think it the duty of every citizen, in the present condition of the country, to do all in his power to aid in the restoration of peace and harmony, and in no way to oppose the policy of the State or General Government directed to that object. It is particularly incumbent upon those charged with the instruction of the young to set them an example of submission to authority, and I could not consent to be the cause of animadversion upon the College.

Should you, however, take a different view, and think that my services in the position tendered me by the Board will be advantageous to the College and country, I will yield to your judgment and accept it. Otherwise I must most respectfully decline the office.

Begging you to express to the Trustees of the College my heartfelt gratitude for the honor conferred upon me, and requesting you to accept my cordial thanks for the kind manner in which you have communicated its decision. I am, gentlemen, with great respect,

Your most obedient servant,

R. E. LEE.

Messrs. John W. Brockenbrough, Rector; S. McD. Reid, Alfred Leyburn, Horatio Thompson, D. D. Bolivar Christian, T. J. Kirkpatrick, Committee.

General Lee was formally installed as president of Washington College, October 2d, 1865, and he retained this position until his death, October 12th, 1870. During his administration of five years the growth of the college in numbers and influence was phenomenal. In the rear of the college chapel, which he built is a mausoleum, in which his remains are interred. Over them is a recumbent statue of him in Italian marble, by the Virginia sculptor, E. V. Valentine.

In 1849 a law school was founded in Lexington, and subsequently brought to a high state of efficiency, by Judge John W. Brockenbrough. Under the persuasive influence of General Lee the Lexington Law School became, in 1866, the "School of Law and Equity of Washington College," with Judge Brockenbrough as professor in charge. This organic connection has continued to the present day.

WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY

1871

In 1871, soon after the death of General Lee, the name of Washington College was changed to its present corporate title, "The Washington and Lee University." In the same year General G. W. Custis Lee succeeded his father as president. During his twenty-six years of service the scope of the institution was much enlarged, and its endowment grew, partly through his own generous giving. He resigned December 29th, 1896, was made president emeritus, and died February 18th, 1913.

The successor of General Custis Lee was William Lync Wilson, who had achieved distinction during the previous fifteen years, as a member of Congress, and in the cabinet of President Cleveland. President Wilson's brief administration was signally beneficial to the institution. It was closed by his death, October 17th, 1900.

Professor Henry St. George Tucker, dean of the school of law, acted as president during the unexpired last year of President Wilson's term.

In September, 1901, Dr. George H. Denny, who for two years had held the chair of Latin in the university, was elected president. He was inaugurated in June, 1902, and terminated his connection with Washington and Lee, December 31st, 1911, thus closing ten years of vigorous administration, during which the institution made rapid and marked progress in various lines.

During the vacancy of six months following the withdrawal of President Denny the duties of the presidency were confided by the trustees jointly to the dean, Dr. H. D. Campbell, and the treasurer, Mr. J. L. Campbell.

In January, 1912, Dr. Henry Louis Smith was called from the presidency of Davidson College to that of Washington and Lee University. He assumed his new official functions July 1st, 1912, and was formally inaugurated May 7th, 1913.

Mr. J. L. Campbell died April 22d, 1913, after thirty-six years of exceptionally efficient service.

Since the incorporation of the institution the following have been its presidents:

WILLIAM GRAHAM, A. M.	1782-1796
SAMUEL L. CAMPBELL, M. D.	1797-1799
GEORGE A. BAXTER, D. D.	1799-1829

A SUGGESTION

Robert Douglas Ramsey

Of course everyone knows what a coup is, and those who know Robert Douglas Ramsey know that he has executed more coups than any man who ever came to Washington and Lee. In fact, his record for executing coups would make most others resemble a last summer's straw hat in an Easter parade, so bizarre and phenomenal have been his sundry accomplishments.

This young gentleman began his variegated mundane career amid the sweet-scented magnolias of Arkansas, and to thwart the contentions of the noisy rabble, he has certainly proved the stellar champion of his native heath, as a reward for which loyalty he will doubtless be elected governor upon his return. At an early age having thoroughly ruminated all the ready knowledge put out by the high school of his maternal burg, he migrated to Hendrix College, which institution soon shared the fate of the above high school. But led on by the irresistible song of Minerva, and thirsting and clamoring for the elusive lore that maketh a man wise, he set sail for Lexington, where of course he was met by Siamese and the Y. M. C. A. reception committee for new students.

The feature of his arrival was not that he was met by the above celebrities, but that he steamed into town with lots of pep, which he has had ever since. Not champagne pep that was soon to fizzle and flatten, but like good old Burgundy that richens and ripens with age. Those not liking Burgundy can have it beer and skittles, for the point is that he has always with considerable elat, been able to deliver the goods in neat little packages tied with pink baby ribbon.

Yes, he has some idiosyncrasies—and by the way they are good ones. He prides himself on getting up with the birds—owls, not harks. He was never known to miss a class except when the dances were in session, and never a dance when classes were in session. Some dancer too, they (the eternal feminine) call him "perfectly divine," which of course we refuse to corroborate. He is an exquisite literary craftsman, with more imagination than a cow chewing her cud; can ride a bicycle; and is the only man in college who has never failed to talk Mrs. Pettigrew out of eleven cents worth of candy for a nickel.

Popularity constitutes the major part of his middle name, and he belongs to every organization now extant from the Pressing Club to Phi Beta Kappa, including a charter membership in the Lexington Civic League. He originated several clubs merely to show his oratorical ability in accepting the nomination of its presidency.

His leaving the University will be greatly felt for numerous moons from Daddy's Pleading Class to the Delta Tau dining hall—especially the latter. As a disciple of Blackstone, he intends to pursue his chosen profession in his native State, and not a single doubt exists but that he will overtake it, for success is assured this budding young barrister, as he steps forth into the great world life enveloped in the many shouts of "Vive Le Bob!"

A SIX REEL GREEDGRAFT DRAMA

(Passed by the Rational Board of Citizenship.)

Darkness had fallen with a great crash around Stewcomb Hall, as students bent their way homeward laden with care and books. There on a tin throne, beneath a glimmering Tungsten, sits Lefty, smoking three feet of manilla rope. He is wondering how to spend his time, when suddenly a loud noise is heard in the hallway, and System comes head-long through the door. He is laden down with paraphernalia. In addition to two typewriters, he carries a megaphone, tuning fork, and a pair of dice. Lefty turns slowly, and says, "Solutions," but System remains silent. Finally, after great suspense, System throws down a shining five-cent piece, whispering in muffled tones, "The lady needeth a new pair of shoes." Lefty extracts a small coin, and the struggle is on. At 2 A. M., System grabs all the proceeds and breaks for the door, but Lefty fells him with a huge turnip, and System screams in agony, "Murder!" Exeunt omnes down the fire-escape, pursued by Chief Parrent and the Automatic Mule.

“BACK TO NATURE”

Coming Week's Bill

Mr. James Weinberg of Le Theatre Lyrique, announces through his energetic manager, Ike Thornton, that the bill offered for the coming week will be of unusual merit, and vaudeville devotees should feel very grateful towards these gentlemen for securing this rare histrionic treat, as these attractions include many present-day artists of renown.

The head-liner is the famous Pest-House Quartet, composed of Daddy, Bob, Joe, and Clovis in heart-rending songs, featuring that well known little Italian love ballad "Nemo Allegans, Res Ipsa Loquitur." This aggregation has appeared before all the crown-heads, boneheads, and deadheads of Europe, and also Mayor O. C. Jackson. They have a bunch of rare (don't mistake the meaning) songs, that are bound to please.

The Smythe twins, Louise and Livia, will be seen in a singing, dancing, and talking skit (mostly talking), to conclude which Louise, who possesses a voice like the sighing surf on a sea of sorghum, sings: "Whose Little Girl Am I." Cabbage of last season's vintage, and eggs of uncertain age may be obtained by applying at the box office.

A novelty in magic from the Orient is Rajah Slouch, the wonderful fire-eating and sword-swallowing Arab, fresh from the burning sands of the desert. He has been pronounced mankind's greatest mystery, and his act is beyond description.

Esquire Granger, the noted big league star, this season presents his acme of burlesque, entitled, "Crowded Restaurants." It will be an especial treat to local fans to witness this veteran of the ball lot in his marvelous melange of mirth and melody.

Molly and Marie Jane, a pair of little dancing pearls, in repertoire of classic poses and oriental dances! Complimenting whom the Loch Laird Daily Distress says, "As graceful as cows." The Eagle adds, "Would do credit to a B. and O. box-car." This insures the cleverness of these maids.

Malane Persephone Pettigrew, the wonderful impersonator of the art of Terpsichore, who so recently set Buena Vista aglare, will be seen in her marvelous hoop skirt roll. This season she is in great form (we refer to ability), and as an encore will sing, "I'm the eandy kid." If she does not get an encore, she will sing it anyhow.

As a special feature Herr Tommy von Farrar, the monarch of minstrel merry makers, will be offered. As a laugh provoker he is without a peer. His renditions will be interspersed with impersonations of famous animals, including imitations of summertime McCartney and Miss Little.

Mlle. Annie and Mons. Sissie, the world's greatest exponents of society and whirlwind dancing, including the Turkey Trot, Tommy Rot, and Fancy Dress Flop. In their portrayal of the Cradle Snatch they are ably assisted by Mons. J. Hogue, whose superiority in this line is undisputed. The management has requested that nothing larger than stale cucumbers be used in the ovation, as Mons. Sissie is a trifle slow on the dodge.

Those dancing demons, Toady and Davy (this team was captured in the wilds of Hinton at great loss of life and money). Toady, who holds all records for long distance piano playing, gives a pianologue, while Davy does the September Morn stunt, to insure the success of which, Mark Hanna will personally work the spot light.

Cutie Easter, the versatile female impersonator, appears without the aid of a mask or hair cut in a one act absurdity entitled, "Un Peu D'Amour." This act speaks for itself, and can be heard as far as Balcyny Falls. All bouquets for Cutie must be smuggled through the key hole of the stage door.

Doc, the king of comedy, and Harry, America's most eccentric contortionist and aquatic phenomenon, backed by a beauty chorus of thirty maidens, present the Lexington Premiere of their latest dramatic playlet, "Going Some," or "Why I Left Lexington," in which Doc propounds a bunch of ancient jokes, while Harry hangs suspended from the stage ceiling by his left toe for thirteen seconds, finally diving into a tub of ginger ale without getting his whiskers wet. As an added feature the entire ensemble in the grand finale will sing that thrilling, emotional, bloodthirsty, and pulse-quickening ditty, "The Washington and Lee Sting."

The company's special pages, Poak and Paul, will pass ice-water between acts, a limit of ten gallons being made to each patron.

Souvenirs given away at Friday's matinee to ladies wearing no false hair.

Tickets now on sale at H. O. Dohls and the Co-Op.

New Course Added

It will be of interest to patrons of Washington and Lee, to know that a much needed course in Poolology has been added to the curriculum. The eminent authority, Doctor William Higgins, has been selected to fill the chair of this important study, with Mr. Gosie Glass as associate professor.

The object of the course is to give to the students a practical and working knowledge of French, English, and Drawing, the mastery of which is the cue to success.

A small laboratory fee will be charged.

TEXTBOOKS: Brunswick and Balk's Advanced Poolology, and Keeley on Position.

Eddie Parke Davis

It is stretching the metaphor a bit to put in same connection Tennyson's stream and the annual influx of future governors, presidents, etc., (get a copy of a commencement address and learn what to call them) in the fall, but we are nevertheless constrained to remark that: "students may come and students may go, but Eddie Park goes on forever."

Those who had the nerve to attend the P. A. N. initiation of last fall, remember this name Davis being lauded as the performer of the most miraculous scientific feat in elasticity—stretching the ordinary two-year law course into one of indefinite duration. He is a member of the famous class of 'O Never, along with those other celebrities, Don Earwood and Harry Moran. Eddie did believe that everything came to him who waits, but his LL. B. got to acting contrary and started back the other way, and Edward decided it was time the pursuit of said legal lore was starting, and what did he do? Why, he entered the law school of course, this year, and even went so far as to start attending classes and on several occasions has been caught working up cases. Oh! Mirable Dictu—even more—he has becomee pressed with work, for when the music clubs, recognizing his innate talent, made him the "goat" in working up a minstrel show, they and the whole University were astounded to see in the columns of the Weakly (Daddy was sent a marked copy), that Davis had resigned as the local Bernard Shaw because of his inability to mix that with his duties in Tucker Hall. Verily the days of miracles are at hand once more—no, we forget this is not miraculous, this is only natural, for has not Eddie's own companion of the days at dear old Davidson exclaimed: "This is pre-eminently an age of mind and great sacrifices, by those ambitious to learn are peculiarly fitting to this unique era."

Eddie fits into the landscape around old Rockbridge like Liberty Hall, or the College Widows, or some of the other numerous and ancient traditions, and if he ever does leave his loss will be felt, but no one (and least of all Eddie), is thinking of his leaving any time in the immediate future.

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

Big Dick.....ONE HIGHER UP
Phoebe.....HIS BETTER HALF
Little Joe.....THE VILLIAN

SCENE—McCrum's Hall.

TIME—Midnight.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The play will have to be temporarily omitted as Sheerluck White, the village sleuth, is coming up the stairway.)

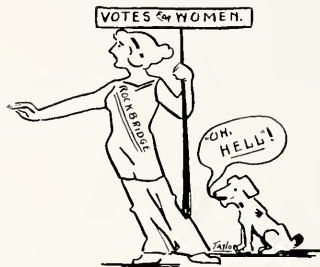

(With apologies to the author of "Everybody's Doing It.")

Would you really, Dearest, care
If I dare
To declare
That I love you very much;
Yes, so much
That your touch
Sets me crazy with delight.
Wish I had the proper right,
To kiss and hug you every night—
You're a kite! You're a kite!
* Your'e a KI—TE!!

He called her Lily, Pansy, Rose,

A Suffraget's Soliloquy

(With apologies to Shakespeare, Hamlet and others.)
To vote, or not to vote—that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler for the betterment of human existence—

To still retain a position of admirable influence over man,

Or to gain the ballot and thus accomplish
Th' aims of petty jealousies—to win—to b' equal
Ah me! and by equality, pester and torment
The wretched masculine till he's a slave—
'Tis a lucrative thought: For by this
Vote I may no longer remain an old-maid,
But catch a chance by forcing marriage—and Thus end maidish days of one grim hope
That makes calamity of so long life.

To have position of equality that hath
Long been the talk of our pink teas;
To drink, to smoke, to loaf at the corner;
And gossip with the cook and hired man. And then there's
Pronounce of position which one can attain by public notoriety;
When one can add a host of votes by conspicuous dress and color
With split skirt and purple hair at the polls!

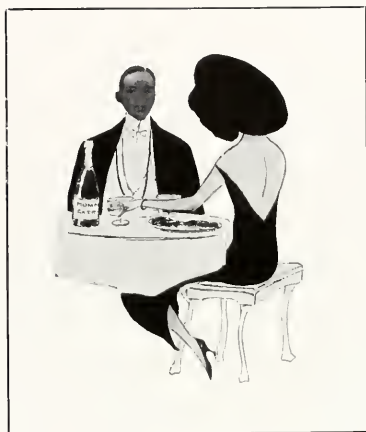

With masculine chained to the cradle and dishpan;
Would this b' all bliss? Contending with
Ambitious feminines promoting their own selfish aims—
And thus I pause and my hesitation
Is mocked and leer'd at by the ghost of fear.
Will I take the ballot and be supreme? Yes—
(Enter cooks and chamber-maids)

Oh! What now? My equals!

Little grains of powder,
Dabs of pinkish paint,
College girl's complexion—
Looks like what it aint!

I did not dress on Easter Morn,
Just walked like this,
And it was warm.

But soon some eve—
We'll go and dine—
And have a lobster,
And some wine.

And later on I thought of you,
And of the sketch I had to do,
So, I sat down and made these sketches,
And thought about my lonesome wretches.

Somewhere out West, where women vote
There is a regulation note
To this effect—for men, of course,
Before the women joined the force—
Inside the booth, must let all see
His lower limbs up to the knees,
And now the women—well they pause,
Ere they obey the election laws.

Said Henry Ward Beecher to a hen:
"You're such a beautiful creature!"
The hen just for that,
Laid an egg in his hat—
And thus did the hen reward Beecher.

"Mark" Hanna

William McKinley might have thought the original "Mark" Hanna was some boy when it came to managing campaigns (including campaign funds), and things in general—we will grant that the original was there in the managing line, but right in our midst we have his equal—nay, his superior.

It was evidently a very wise guy that originated that familiar maxim, "you can't squeeze blood out of a turnip," but it would take a whole regiment of deep thinkers to discover any kind of a scheme that "Mark" Hanna couldn't get money out of.

It is a familiar saying around the campus, "Put your hands on your pocket-book, here comes 'Mark' Hanna." Oh! no, we don't insinuate he practices any holdup game. Far from it! He has the smoothest, oiliest and most effective line you ever heard. Before he gets through with you you are trying to force your money on him—and he invariably takes it, and takes it for anything—from the benefit of the Lyric down to tickets for a suffragette meeting, not to mention the Y. M. C. A., the athletic association, the new gymnasium, the Ring Tam Phi, or any other worthy cause.

Some call him "Ikey," insinuating his money getting tendency is suggestive of the Israelite—that doesn't begin to describe him—he can spot Ikey seven days and then get more in a week than said Hebrew ever rubbed his hands over.

We predict a great success for "Mark" in this world—if he has half the luck with the world as he does with the students.

Knyghtes of Ye Rounde Table

(EXTRACT FROM AN ANCIENT MANUSCRIPT)

In ye olden daies during ye reigne of ye goode Kyng Mychaele, there dwelte in onre lande nanie true and zealous noblemen in bodye and p[ro]vesse faire, renowned for their graces and chivalrie. Arounde ye famous table they would at sunnhye tymes meete, and vie in friendlie rivalrie wresting one wythe ye other to surpassse his brethrene in tossing queere cubes ye like to which are no longer wort to be seene in all onre realme.

Histrie hath given but meagre report of any manner wherewithal these courteous gentylmen did strive, save it hath been saide by some that they did calle forth in manie strange synballes and termes of ye which ye clamoring vulgar did remain unbeknown. Frequentlie ye saide meetinge did extende into ye nyghte, until he who was moste fortunate of them all, in joyfull glee would beare away ye smalle discs which in their quaint and homlie tongue they were wont to call gittines.

But ere manie yeres did pass ye good Mychaele did go away into strange countrees, and unto ye throne came ye sterne Queen Louise, who of solenne miene and given not exceeinglie to frivolitie did look upon these knyghtes with dire displeasure. For their lerning she did consider unpolishd, and full debonarie did thinke that in manie and divers wayes they had alwaies ye common weale hurted and damaged, and possesed of grete feare lest their machinations would scantilie in any goode nanner be of profite, but fetch rather ill trouble and unquietness upon ye bodye polittick.

Forthwith an edicte did she issue to fulfill her dutie by ye which these knyghtes should be banished from out all her boundes, and anon after then before nanie daies there remained not one of ye noble bande to be seene in all ye lande. And for such tyme thereafter much sorrowings and chagrin was in ye court, for oftentymes in truthe ye Queene was in grete melancholie, for the same no more continued so much joie and pleasantrie as had been in tymes afore.

Who loves not woen, wine and song,
Remains a fool his whole life long,
But who his whole life loves the three,
A hundred times a fool is he.

Her Glove

C. C. J.

This is the glove she used to wear—

A scented relic white as snow.

'Tis slender as her hand was fair

In happy days of long ago.

Times' tragic changes bring despair—

Alas, for pleasures done and gone!

This is the glove she used to wear.

And now she cannot get it on.

“Fats” Miller

Behold the “Pride of Hinton.” To those of the emaciated and elongated type who are striving to be otherwise through the medium of some “get fat quick” patent medicine, we can point to this bouncing, bounding elephantine mass of obesity and say: “Look at this and do your best.” A. G. Spalding threw up his hands in despair when the measurements for “Fats” football uniform came in—and all opposing guards threw up the sponge when they saw this uniform in use. “Fats” is the politest man on a large scale on record—he has been known to get up on a street car and give seven ladies his seat. He is a crowd in his self, but he resembles a riot when he is given the ball with four yards to go. Chasing up and down the hills around Hinton (looking for the town we suppose), gave him a swiftness of foot almost unbelievable when it is considered what he had to carry, but it was in evidence just the same, and his end runs resembled—well, there is no way to describe them, for a thing have to be seen to be appreciated.

Sure he is lithe and active—we have never seen him engage in any of the modern terpsichorean features, but we are willing to bet our bottom dollar that if it came to a show down he would back Vernon Castle off the boards.

Examinations

Examinations are of many kinds, being used for practically every conceivable purpose, and no well regulated family can afford to be without one. The principal kinds are eugenic, civil service, and x-ray examinations. Among the chief causes of their existence at present is to discover hookworms, and find out how much wayward students are capable of cramming one day, writing the next, and forgetting the third.

It is this last mentioned type that causes so much sorrow, and wrecks so many homes. The kind put out at Washington and Lee fall in this category, and are of an advanced type, invariably producing much weariness of the flesh and an undue amount of profanity. At one time when students were crude, examinations were thought to be extremely serviceable, but in our modern age of college life with its different kinds of hops and other enlightening features, we are glad to note that this delusive idea is fastly dying away, and it is earnestly hoped that this pernicious practice will be stopped before another generation appears on the scene.

A wise old bird sat on an oak,
The more he heard the less he spoke.
The less he spoke, the more he heard,
Here's to the lesson from the wise old bird.

“CREAM OF THE SOUTH”

THE TANGO

Harry Moran

Herewith we present a portrait of Count Harry de Morancy, an Italian of French descent, breaker of hearts and a member of the Board of Visitors of Sweet Briar, Mary Baldwin, Randolph-Macon and the other houses of the sweet dainty things. Striking out twenty-eight North Carolina Aggies in one game is not the only record he has established around here—he is known to have fallen in love six times during one of the dances. Yes, they worry him greatly, (for information along this line see the telegraph boy and special delivery letter carrier) they can get him rattled but they haven't knocked him out of the box yet. "Lefty" is there with the staying qualities, and though one may make a hit he is ready for the next one up.

No doubt about it, he has put Wyndale, W. Va., on the map (it certainly wasn't there before). The natives there were proud enough of his achievements on the diamond, but we can imagine them swelling up right into the busting point when the dispatches related that "Handsome Harry" impersonated the Father of our Country at Miss Annie's annual society circus. Harry didn't mind the job, but he realized too late that George wore knickerbockers—why this remark? One glance at the picture will suffice and permit us to say, 'tis true to life.

A look at this genial Irish countenance wouldn't make a person think it belonged to an outlaw—but so it is. The Federal League now claims him as their own—but he will make good, for he is bound to make a hit—at least with the ladies around the circuit.

Dr. Mollie Corrects Historical Errors

From recent research work Dr. Mollie, the noted historian, has made interesting discoveries, which remove some existing popular delusions about early Virginia annals. Modern history will henceforth be greatly indebted to Dr. Mollie, and doubtless as often as he calls to collect he will be given courteous treatment and told when to call again.

It is now well settled that Pocahontas was the prime instigator of the little scene that came so near ending Capt. John Smith's tour of America. She was chasing the Captain around her paternal tepee with a batpin, when suddenly Powhatan came to the rescue, and handed the Captain a skin full of arrows. But he, being somewhat of a sport himself, handed back a little blue megaphone draped with blue streamers and to do him one better gave the "long yell." The Chief, claiming the copyright on all war whoops in that section, took exception, so much exception that Captain Smith after chopping "Coatan" on the Chief's prize apple tree, was forced to move on up the James river to Lynchburg, where he began making shoes for the rest of the colonies. He never smiled again.

The circumstances under which Patrick Henry made his famous "Give me liberty or give me death" utterance, have been woefully misrepresented, and we consider Dr. Mollie's correction an important one. The noted statesman had merely asked the chairman to whom the South Atlantic Championship for the preceding fall should be awarded, and then, as now, such a hubbub arose that the speaker uttered these immortal words to give vent to his feelings. But it was unavailing, and, Gus Malbert not being present, it became necessary to call out the town guard to quell the riot.

It is further concluded that Balboa did not discover the Pacific, as the intrepid Spaniard admitted at the time. "Is this the Pacific, or Cameron's pond?" Dr. Mollie quotes him as saying, as he vainly tried to peer beneath the mighty billows that rolled at his feet. Then in a loud voice he called out, "Uncle Jeff!" thrice in rapid succession, and getting a distinct answer said, "The ayes have it. It is Cameron's pond." Whereupon he and his comrades beat a hasty retreat to the "Greeks" for an egg sandwich.

Phulish Poetry

There is no rose
 But has its cruel thorn.
 No pleasure grows
 Without some grief to fill us.
 In words of bliss
 There still lurks tones of scorn
 In every kiss—
 So e dog-gone bacillus.

You may be a wise lad,
 And long way from bad,
 But remember, my son,
 As your journey you run,
 You can learn a whole lot from your dad.

A jolly young chemistry tough,
 While mixing a compound of stuff,
 Dropped a natch in a vial,
 And after a while,
 They found his front teeth and one cuff.

The dun py girls are not the sort,
 Who most bewitchingly enthrall;
 'Tis better to have loved a short
 Than never to have loved a tall!

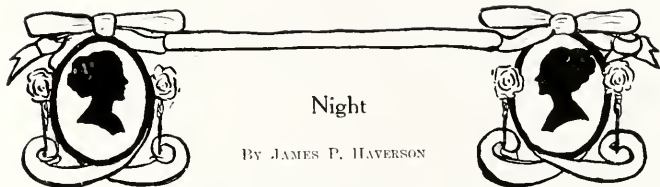

"Oh, tell me your favorite air," he cried
 To the maiden demure and fair;
 And the maiden sighed as she replied:
 "I guess it's a millionaire."

A thousand years a poor man watched
 Before the gates of Paradise.
 But while one little nap he snatched,
 It open and shut. Ah! was he wise?

Lives of lawyers oft remind us,
 That we will, if we are wise,
 Leave our modesty behind us,
 And go out and advertise.

"FROM AN ATHLETIC ANGLE"

Night

BY JAMES P. HAVERSON

Silence and velvety dark,
A darkness that is not gloom,
The silence of little sounds
That hover around the room—
Where the ears and hands must serve
Instead of the eyes for sight,
And you and I are alone—
Alone with the intimate night.

Someway, you feel that I have come,
Awaken and know I am here
Before I have sought your breast,
Or lost my hands in your hair.
You and I, and the night,
With love to guard the door—
You would not offer less
And love cannot ask for more.

TO YOU, who are leaving us to take up in the world the life work for which you have fitted yourselves at Washington & Lee, we say "Good-bye and good luck." Come to see us when you come back to visit the scenes of your college days.

TO YOU, who are coming back next season, we extend the glad hand, and the service, and the courteous attention to your wants, which have made us and the Washington & Lee men friends since we commenced business.

We ask you to bring the new men to us, that we may become acquainted with them.

Bring also your wants for—

*Prescriptions, Smoking
Goods, High-Grade Candies, Ice
Cream, Soda Water and Cut Flowers*

Lastly, we want the whole student body to know Coleman's, and Coleman's Service.
